INVASION LOOMS IN NAZI MOVE

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6 (AP)—All sporting events in the German-occupied Netherlands scheduled for Sunday, including 100 soccer matches, were cancelled today. The reason was not disclosed.

Similar moves were made by Hitler last spring before his invasion of Norway and Denmark and his attack on Belgium and Holland. On those occasions all-week-end railroad trips by civilian populations were forbidden and public events were cancelled.

Today's ban fits in with other significant occurrences of this week, such as the torpedoing of a Nazi transport off Norway, and the bombing of Nazi barge concentrations at ports in the Low Countries and northern France, and may indicate Hitler is about to launch finally the invasion of Britain.—Editor's note.

CAROL AND SON, MIHAI, IN FOND EMBRACE
Son Made King of Rumania as Father Fleed

BUCHAREST, Sept. 6 (AP)—King Carol II, yielding to demand of Rumania's new military dictatorship and riotous clamor in the streets, abdicated today in favor of his 18-year-old son Mihai and fled into exile aboard the royal yacht.

Reported with him was red-haired Magda Lupescu, his associate more than a decade ago when he relinquished his right to the throne for gay Paris exile and let Prince Mihai reign as a child monarch under a regency.

Mihai Is Only King To Precede, Twice Succeed His Father

BUCHAREST, Sept. 6—Rumania's new king, 18-year-old Mihai, was snatched from a sound sleep at 6 a. m. today to find himself once more monarch of his native land.

The new King, who as a boy ruled briefly under a regency until Carol took possession of the throne in 1930, was awakened by court functionaries, who conducted him to the room of his father, the abdicating Carol. The latter greeted his son with this solemn statement:

"You are again King of Rumania."

Then Carol, weary after a night of conferences with Rumania's new "leader of the state," Gen. Ion Antonescu, embraced and kissed his son with tears in his eyes.

OATH ADMINISTERED

Subsequently, Mihai received Antonescu; Patriarch Nicodemus, high priest of Rumania, and Chief Justice Radulescu of the Supreme Court, and took the oath of his new office.

As a child, Mihai was the first King in history to precede his father on the same throne.

Enthroned July 20, 1927, before he was six years of age, Mihai served as boy-king under a regency until he gave way to his father, King Carol II, upon the latter's return from exile in 1930.

During the last decade, Mihai frequently was at his father's side during the conduct of official business but has made annual trips to Florence, Italy, to visit his mother, Princess Helen of Greece. His parents' marriage ended in divorce June 21, 1928.

EDUCATION STERN

Mihai has had a stern education. Living simply, he has risen early and spent long hours of study under exacting teachers who schooled him in languages, military science, government, history, mathematics, philosophy and dancing.

Tall and inclined to stoutness, he has kept a good figure through athletics.

Mihai loves sports, especially skiing, tennis and riding. In these diversions one of his companions has been Mile, Lulu Malaxa, daughter of Rumania's biggest industrialist.

However, under the rules of the royal house, Mihai must marry a princess of royal blood, and persons close to the court have expressed belief he was debating a choice between Princesses Marie Antoinette and Marie Aldegonde, twin daughters of Prince Frederick Victor, head of the House of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen.

The destination of the royal yacht which sailed into the Black sea from Constantia was not known. The King boarded it after secret departure from Bucharest by special train.

Back of him in troubled, dismembered Rumania Carol left his son as the front of an Axis-aligned military dictatorship which already had started a wholesale roundup of important political figures in Carol's decade of power.

GETS $60,000 YEAR

Government circles reported that Carol in exile would receive an annual "pension" equal to $60,000.

Close associates of Gen. Ion Antonescu, the new premier-designate, said there was long debate at the palace during the night over Carol's demand for a financial settlement.

An annual payment was decided on, it was said, but Carol likely will be dispossessed of much of his extensive property holdings in Rumania. He was reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in Europe.

Prince Mihai immediately was proclaimed king-successor to his father, but only to be a figurehead ruler under stern Gen. Antonescu, to whom Carol had first yielded his kingly powers and at whose demand he finally gave up the throne.

Carol was believed by some to be en route to Egypt. But there was no confirmation of this, and other

HOUSE REFUSES TO EXTEND DRAFT AGE; F. D. ASKS SPEED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (AP)—The House refused twice today to change the registration age limit of 21 to 44, inclusive, in the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

On a voice vote, Rep. Rees (R.) of Kansas, lost in an effort to broaden the spread to include men from 21 to 54, inclusive, and Rep. Anderson (D.) of Missouri was defeated, 181 to 47. In an attempt to make the brackets conform to the Senate's figures of 21 to 30, inclusive.

Rees argued that "men are just as fit at 55 as they are at 45," and said that if responsibility of military service was to be shared equally, "you might as well include another 10,000,000 men up to 55."

A little later Anderson tried and failed, on a voice vote, to restrict the ages of those who would be called into service to 21 to 30, inclusive. His earlier amendment would have applied to registration age limits.

Rep. Schafer (R.) of Wisconsin proposed that the bill be amended to require all members of Congress under 65 to register. He lost, 123 to 119.

Lone Gunman Kidnaps And Robs Man of $3000

In a bold daylight kidnap-robbery in Central ave., Chelsea, today, a lone gunman jumped in an auto beside an East Boston tobacco shop auto on the Revere Beach parkway.

The money had just been drawn from a Chelsea bank by the robbery victim, Hyman Greenberg, 40, and the tobacco shop owner, Miss Bessie Toobin, 45.

Miss Toobin is accustomed to keep a substantial sum on hand in her shop in Meridian st., Maverick ex., East Boston, to cash pay checks and WPA checks.

In Central ave., Chelsea, Miss Toobin got out of the car to shop. Greenberg stayed to guard the $3000, which was in a paper bag. First hint he had of trouble was when the bandit, dressed in a brown suit and wearing dark sun glasses, stepped in beside him.

Jamming a blue steel revolver against Greenberg's side, the gunman said menacingly:

LONDON, Sept. 6 (AP)—Coming wave on wave in formations too thick to count, Hitler's warplanes today launched mightier assaults than ever against Britain after the worst night of the war, and engaged in a series of non-stop battles all over the London area and southeastern England.

To meet the onslaught, masses of British fighters took to the skies, setting upon at least one formation of 200 bombers and battle planes and fending off bomb attacks on airports in the London area.

The furious offensives seemed designed to wear down the Royal Air Force and smash its bases to clear the way for land invasion.

Sewers were hit, a gas main wrecked, railroad stations hit and communications temporarily knocked out, an air raid shelter containing 1000 persons hit, a hospital demolished and houses and shops knocked to pieces.

The London area had its fourth alarm of the day at 5:59 p. m., after a respite of only a little over four hours.

BRITISH RAIDERS BUSY

While the fourth raid was under way the air ministry announced RAF attacks last night on the Fiat Airplane Engine Works at Turin, Italy, on the German-held French harbors of Boulogne and Calais and on the Cap Gris Nez (France) emplacements of long range guns that had battered the English channel coast.

International News Service reported that waders along the coast estimated the number of Nazi planes in the raids as at least 800—Editor's note.

Battles were raging in fully half a dozen areas of southeastern England, and the air ministry announced 34 German planes had been shot down. Nine British planes were lost, but the pilots of six were saved.

Berlin claimed late today that two formations of German planes bombed hangars and airplane works at Henley and Weybridge, leaving 11 of their own number downed but reporting 35 British planes shot down.

Four hangars and 10 planes at Weybridge were said to have been hit, while at Henley hits were scored on runways as well as the south side of the field. Henley and Weybridge are both west of London, Henley, on the Thames.

KILLER INSANE?

MARY WOLF
Mystery Slayer

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 6

—A sanity test was being planned today for 17-year-old Mary Wolf, confessed kill-thrill slayer of her 9-year-old brother, Frederick, as bewildered police pieced together the amazing story of the tom-boy girl who wanted to discover what her emotions would be in taking a human life.

The girl slept soundly last night and was whistling popular airs in her cell today. She evinced lively curiosity over plans for Frederick's funeral.

"I would like to attend," she said, "to see what it would be like."

The girl's heart-broken parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wolf, engaged counsel whose first move today was to take steps for mental tests, indicating that the defense will be based on grounds of insanity.

As the 'teen-age Mary remained calm in police custody, showing hardly any emotion as she entered a routine plea of "not guilty," police got part of the tragic story from Emmett McNatt, Mary's 18-year-old boy friend.

Emmett was visiting at Mary's home, during the absence of her parents, and while the slain boy, Frederick, was asleep upstairs. Suddenly Mary made the peculiar request for Emmett to "take a walk around the block." Although he thought it strange, he complied.

Calmly, coolly, Mary took aim and a bullet pierced Frederick's forehead and he was dead.

The desire to see a human being shot to death had been fulfilled.

BOMBS KILL 21 WOMEN IN HOSPITAL

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 6—Twenty-one pairs of sightless eyes today stared at me from waxen faces, and 21 women mutely asked me, with the force of the dead speaking to the living:

"Why did they want to kill us?" The all died with their hands over their heads. That was the way they moved as they lay in their hospital beds just before death came. They couldn't leap for shelter because they were patients—ill or hurt.

When they heard the scream of the German bombs, their instinctive gesture was to pull the bed covers over their heads.

At any rate, that's the way Jimmy, the mortuary man, explained it as he took me around to view the ghastliest sight this war has yet produced, and the worst German bombing of a hospital that has yet taken place in this country.

2 WOMEN MISSING

The reason workmen were still there burrowing so diligently was because there are still two women missing, making 23 dead in all. So blasted and pulverized are the ruins that the head of the hospital said:

"We may never find them at all."

At the huge crater dug by the bomb there was full evidence of the missile's destructive force. The bomb was heavy enough to go clear through the roof, the ceiling and floor of the second story, and through to the first floor, where it detonated and literally pulverized two wards occupied solely by women, mostly old.

But not all old women. There was one girl of about 23. Nobody knows her name yet. She is one of the seven unidentified.

BEAUTIFUL IN DEATH

But if anyone who knew her could see her there, he would have no trouble telling who she was because she is still beautiful.

Her face, unscarred, is exactly like an Egyptian princess and her proud mouth seems set in scorn against her murderer.

Anger blazed in Jimmy's eyes as he lifted a sheet and exclaimed:

"See this one? This is one they came back for twice. You know why she was in the hospital? Because they machine-gunned her last Sunday, and the poor girl was going—maybe—to get well."

"But they clearly wanted her badly, so this morning they got her with their bomb."

MILLION-DOLLAR BARRACKS DISCUSSED—Building of a barracks to house officers and men of the navy and marine reserves was discussed today by (l. to r.) Mayor Tobin, Cmdr. P. J. Searles, Capt. John T. BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 6 (AP)—The sheriff is looking into the pedigrees of two of his blood-hounds.

One, called upon to follow the scent of a man who threw a dynamite cap under an oil refinery, apparently picked up a lead. With the posse following, the dog ran straight to a hamburger stand—and stopped.

Another was taken to Columbia, La., to hunt for six escaped Arkansas convicts. The dog found the fugitives all right but struck up such a warm friendship with them that they had to tie him to a tree to get rid of him. Officers rescinded him.

Huge U. S. Barracks In So. Boston Planned

Plans were disclosed at City Hall today for a $1,000,000 building in South Boston to house officers and men in the United States Navy and Marine Reserves.

The barracks, a three-story structure of most modern type, would be on one of three sites owned by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on the off-harbor side of Summer st., adjacent to Reserve Channel.

Everything depends on whether the state is willing to turn over the required land to the Navy Department, either as a gift or on a nominal lease of $1 a year.

According to an agreement reached by Mayor Tobin, in conference with Navy and Marine Corps chiefs, provided the State furnishes the land, the city of Boston will sponsor the project and the WPA will pay the cost of building construction.

This new plan marked abandonment of the proposal to build such a structure in Charlestown or within the fort confines on Castle Island, South Boston.

If today's plans are carried through, the million-dollar barracks would be within striking distance of the Navy drydock next to the Army Base, and would also offer accessibility, by the channel, for patrol boats.

Meeting with Mayor Tobin were Col. Harold C. Pierce, commanding the marine corps in this area; Majors Hamilton M. Fleming and Joseph J. Crowley, also of the marines; Captains John T. Nelson and H. G. Copeland, and Cmdrs. J. C. Webb and P. J. Searles, all of the navy.

Capt. Copeland, Cmdrs. Webb and Searles afterward conferred with Gov. Saltzman on the project, then planned a meeting with State Public Works Commissioner John W. Beal and State WPA Administrator Dennis W. Delaney.

5 Workmen Hurt In Newton Crash

Hurled into the street when their truck was overturned in collision with a small coupe, in Commonwealth ave., near Newton City Hall, five men were taken to Newton Hospital today suffering from serious injuries.

According to police, the accident occurred when Edward J. Apolen, 19, of Harding st., West Newton, driver of the coupe, smashed into the right rear side of the truck driven by Frank Mandile, of Cross st., Waltham, as Apolen swerved to avoid collision with a bus.

Taken to the hospital in an unconscious condition were Joseph Taranto, 25, Lawton pl., possible broken back, his brother, Ralph, 24, of the same address, also a possible broken back, and Felix Picone, 24, of McKenna st., probable serious back injuries.

Also removed to the hospital were Joseph Basile, 24, of Lawton pl., and Joseph Bonica, 24, of River st., who suffered shoulder injuries.

Mandile, pinned in the cab of the truck when it over-turned, did not suffer any injuries, according to Newton police.

CREW OF BLAZING HUB BOAT SAVED AT SEA OFF MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 6—Escape from death of the three-man crew of the Boston-registered cruiser Acacia, afire five-miles east of Portland lightship, was reported today by the Coast Guard patrol plane V-113, piloted by Lieut. Thomas F. Epley.

CLIPPER CUPID AGAIN—The Pan-American Clipper brought Shiela Buckanall of Sussex, England, to the arms of her intended, Harmin L. Remmel, Jr., of Little Rock, Ark.

In his radioed report to Coast Guard headquarters Epley said he landed close to the flaming boat from which the crew had fled in a small tender.

One member of the crew, Charles Kingdon, was reported injured by Epley, who said he had taken him into the plane and was flying him to shore for emergency first aid treatment.

The other two members of the crew, Joseph Corrigan and John Tinlin, were put aboard the coast guard cutter Algonquin, which had been ordered to their assistance after Epley's alarm.

The Acacia was reported to have sunk five minutes after the fire, origin of which was unexplained.

Corrigan and Tinlin will be put ashore at the Cape Elizabeth station which first sounded the alarm. First reports said the crew had been taken aboard a small motorboat in the vicinity.

Epley was on a routine patrol flight from the Salem, Mass., station when he discovered the flaming boat east of the Portland lightship.

Parolee Gives No Defence

With the state demanding the death penalty and defense counsel citing the slaying as an "unsolved mystery," one of the shortest murder trials in the history of the Commonwealth drew to a close in the Dedham court today.

The accused man, Joseph Brooks, paroled Sing Sing prison convict, charged with the fatal shooting of a Milton police officer, did not take the witness stand, and his counsel did not offer any evidence in his own behalf.

In final argument, however, Atty. John D. Smith of Quincy pointed out that two police officers searched Brooks and his companions "at least once, and probably twice," just before the shooting and found no gun.

"Where was that gun?" Atty. Smith demanded. "I don't know. The state doesn't know. I have no right to guess. And I hope you members of the jury will refuse to conjecture or surmise."

"The state failed to prove to you who had the gun or who fired the shot that killed Patrolman Edward F. Lee of Milton," Asst. Dist. Atty. George Arbuckle said evidence showed the gun was in Brooks' possession a short time before the slaying. Bullets to fit the gun and of the same type as the death pellet were found in Brooks' pocket, Arbuckle said.

$21,910 Auto Injury Awards

Damages totaling $21,910.17 for injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Brighton last December were awarded to a Cambridge mother and daughter today by Atty. Lloyd Makepeace, sitting as auditor in the case.

Mrs. Mollie Swartz, 40-year-old widow of Clinton St., Cambridge, but living in Stratmore rd., in Brighton, at the time of the accident on Dec. 8, was awarded $19,375.

The daughter, Marilyn, 11, was awarded $2535.17. Defendants were Mrs. Mary D. Prussman of Mardock at, Brighton, and Harrison H. Fogg, Jr., 17-year-old Brighton High School senior, driver of the car.

Mrs. Swartz lost one leg in the accident, in which she was thrown 40 feet after partially pushing her daughter out of the path of the car.

Believe It or Not—by Ripley—appears every day in the Daily Record.

Jamaica Plain Father Guilty of Beating Baby

Charged by his wife with assault and battery on their two-year-old son, youngest of three children, Carl T. Pinn, 45, of Ensella ter., Jamaica Plain, was found guilty today in West Roxbury court.

The case was continued for disposition, however, until December, by which time, it was stated by the court, an action against Pinn for separate support is expected to be decided.

Mrs. Lucy Pinn, complainant, testified that the father's alleged beating of the boy occurred last Monday and she was informed of it that night by the 13-year-old daughter, Dora.

The father said in court today that he had merely spanked the boy because he was "whining and crying."

According to Dr. Mabelle Hiscok, however, she was sent out by Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children and found the baby's thighs badly bruised.

First U. S. Destroyers Reach Canada, Now Fly British Flag

Out of an unnamed east coast Canadian port today came official announcement that the first group of United States destroyers, overhauled and supplied with ammunition at Boston Navy Yard, are now flying the British flag.

This contingent, the dispatch said, steamed slowly into port out of a dense fog, just before dawn, docked and were immediately manned by British crews. Formalities attending the transfer of commissions were expected to take no more than a few hours. Inasmuch as the craft were ready for action when they left Boston, it was possible that they might move by nightfall into the conflict to preserve England's lifeline to the Dominion.

Censorship, which prevented naming the port of arrival, also forbade telling how many of the four-stacked, 35-knot greyhounds had been received by the British navy.

Canadian authorities indicated that they expected shortly a considerable number of the 30 ships traded to Britain in the destroyer-defense base deal effected by President Roosevelt.

From this, it might be concluded that destroyers are moving north directly from other Atlantic coast navy yards, without calling at Boston. It is known that Washington's aim was to have as many as possible in British hands by week-end.

It has not been determined if the destroyer tender Denebola, which left with the first group on Wednesday night, had arrived at the Canadian port.

This "mother-ship" was detailed to take aboard the U. S. officers and men who manned the destroyers on their mission north and carry them back to a New England

Plane Deliveries Set for Navy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (AP)—Delivery of fighting, scouting and bombing planes to the Navy will reach a rate of more than 100 a month early in 1941, an official statement showed today.

That rate includes only combat-type planes for which formal contracts have been signed. It does not include those which may be contracted for later, nor training, experimental and utility planes.

Delivery dates, hitherto withheld as naval secrets, were disclosed in a navy schedule inserted in the Congressional Record by Rep. Vinson (D.) of Georgia, chairman of the House naval committee.

In the same table, the navy disclosed that it had reached agreements, pending contracts, with manufacturers for 2817 additional fighting, scouting and bombing planes and 27,000 propellers.

With the new agreements, the navy had 3648 fighting, patrolling and bombing planes on order, plus large numbers of training and other craft.

Strikers Return To Aid Defense

Four hundred and fifty of 1200 striking employees in the raincoat industry returned today to Boston and Stoughton plants to work on national defense contracts.

Meanwhile, the state board of conciliation and arbitration made a settlement offer to others, accepted by employers and to be considered by the union later in the day.

The operatives who returned to work were employed by the Cable Raincoat Co. of South Boston and Stoughton.

The workers sought a new contract calling for higher wages and shorter working hours. The old contract expired Sept. 1.

The Cable company employees returned after a conference between State Commissioner of Labor and Industries James T. Moriarty, conciliation board members and representatives of the Waterproof Garment Workers' Union.

Cleary Rally Set For Monday Evening

Supporters of David M. Cleary, candidate for the House of Representatives from Ward 2, will stage a rally at the Clarence R. Edwards School in Walker st., Charlestown, next Monday evening. It was announced today by John Rea, chairman of the affair.

He Wasn't Drunk But It Cost $50

He wasn't intoxicated—he was merely indignant at police for telling him he was drunk, Horace B. Kendall, 51, of Beacon st., Newton Center, an accountant, asserted today in Brookline court.

Patrolman Bernard Sullivan testified, however, that after Kendall's car had struck a parked taxicab in Beacon st., Brookline, at 10:30 p. m. on Aug. 28, Kendall got out of the car and staggered about with a gallon jug in his hand.

The policeman said he attempted to have the accountant leave the car and go home by cab, but Kendall insisted on driving. So the policeman arrested him.

Kendall was fined $50 on a charge of operating while under the influence of liquor. A drunkenness charge was filed.

Rumania Lines Up With Axis

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Sept. 6 (INS)—Abdication of King Carol means that Rumania henceforth may be considered an adjunct of the Rome-Berlin axis, informed German quarters said today.

His successor, 18-year-old King Mihai, is an open supporter of the pro-Nazi Rumanian Iron Guard, it was said, and will rule his country in line with axis policies.

King Carol's fall drew nothing but deep satisfaction in qualified German quarters. The abdicated monarch was described as "a man of loose politics, closely adherent to the Franco-British system of anti-German alliances and intrigues, who failed to grasp the new trend."

In the last few days or weeks, it was said, Carol tried by political juggling to reinstate himself but failed.

"The Rumanian people," one spokesman said, "won't be sorry to see him go."

Rumanian co-operation with the Axis, German quarters said, will put an end to a situation wherein this Rumanian kingdom was the Balkans' "political football." From now on, they said, the Iron Guard will "ride high in the saddle."

In this connection, German quarters declared that Carol and Mihai had a heated argument last January over the latter's Iron Guard sympathies. Apparently anticipating his downfall, Carol was said to have bought a luxurious chateau on the Riviera, a retreat that is now closed to him. One German spokesman said the ex-king might now find himself in a "none too happy financial situation" in Switzerland.

King Mihai and Premier General Ion Antonescu are expected to institute a sweeping housecleaning, waging relentless war against "old-line, pork-barrel politicians, graft, corruption and army deficiencies."

The royal household itself is likely to eject all of Carol's old retainers and especially any in the least way connected with Mme. Lupescu.

No Alarm in Rome Over Carol Abdication

ROME, Sept. 6 (INS)—Italy displayed no particular alarm today over the abdication of King Carol. An official spokesman said:

"We are reserving judgment regarding Carol in view of the number and frequently of Rumanian upsets."

Competent but unofficial Rome quarters said that Italy regarded Carol's move with sympathy on grounds that it "represents an assurance of permanent stabilization" in Rumania and the Balkans.

Irish Execute Two In Detective Killing

DUBLIN, Sept. 6 (AP)—Patrick McGrath and Thomas Green, alias Francis Hart, were executed by a firing squad today for slaying Detective Officer Richard Hyland.

The detective was shot to death Aug. 17 in a raid on a house suspected of being a hideout for members of the outlawed Irish Republican army.

There will be an outing of Norfolk County Young Republicans tomorrow at the Fearing estate, Fox Hill, Westwood, in the interest of Willkie's candidacy for President. But that isn't half of it.

Featured speaker of the day is Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly of Dover, widow of the outdoor advertising executive, who is to tell:

"Why I am for Willkie."

Mrs. Donnelly is the mother-in-law of Mary Curley Donnelly.

Mary Curley Donnelly is the daughter of James Michael Curley, former governor.

James Michael Curley is the campaign treasurer of the Democratic state organization.

The Democratic state organization is seeking re-election of President Roosevelt.

And Roosevelt, of course, is running against Willkie.

KNOX OFF TO HAWAII
 SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox departed at 5:30 a. m. today aboard a four-engineered navy plane bound for Hawaii and inspection of naval units.

Boston Evening American Photo

FIRST U. S. RAILROAD OUT OCT. 1

It was the first railroad line in America, but today the State Public Utilities Commission approved the New Haven's petition for abandonment of the West Quincey branch of the Old Colony and discontinuance of all passenger service, effective Sept. 30.

Over that ancient line which has three passenger stations — West Quincey, East Milton and Montclair — granite was hauled for the Bunker Hill monument.

According to the petition of the New Haven trustees, abandonment of the passenger line will save the road $26,761 annually. The commission report said:

"Petitioners believe they will save the operation of one train of five cars, morning and evening, between Boston and Braintree, because at least one of the trains now running over the branch would be used in place of a local train over the main line in each direction, between the same points.

"There are four trains now operated over the branch, two northbound from Plymouth in the morning, one southbound in the evening to Whitman and one southbound to Campello.

"Train No. 706 from Plymouth would save nine minutes if routed over the main line from Braintree to Boston. This is a train which loads heavily with passengers below Braintree, and the additional minutes required to run over the West Quincey branch has caused many complaints from commuters in that territory.

"Necessity-riding from the territories in the petition will, in our opinion, be sufficiently served under all the circumstances, by other forms of public transportation without railroad service.

"The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway bus service, between East Milton and Boston, and West Quincey and Boston, is ample and the commuter's at Montclair will be served by the bus service at Norfolk Downs, which will be added as soon as the rail service is discontinued."

Only 6 Convicts Still at Large

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 6 (AP)—Spurred by additional captures, officers of three states today tracked the remainder of 36 convicts whose Labor Day break from the Cummins Prison Farm has cost six lives.

Five more captures last night brought to 30 the number accounted for through killing or re-arrest.

A motorist's report last night that a roughly dressed man brandishing a shotgun had tried to stop him on a highway three miles south of Pine Bluff, Ark., sent Jefferson County officers and state police into swampy land near there.

Officers attempted to close in on another convict reported seen near Natchez, Miss., and North Louisiana possemen were on the alert for fugitives in that section.

McMasters On Way for Jury Quiz

William H. McMasters of Cambridge, National Pensioners Party candidate for Governor, will return from Nebraska in time to testify Monday before the Norfolk County grand jury in connection with allegedly forged signatures on his nomination papers, state police were informed today.

McMasters' secretary, Miss Amelia O'Neill of Brighton, told police McMasters had to go to Lincoln, Neb. on city business, but was leaving the city today.

Meantime, the grand jury continued to hear testimony from a parade of witnesses, including Miss O'Neill. McMasters' wife, police miss letters and state and city employees.

OTHERS OUT OF CITY

State police said they were in the city today on business on several occasions. South Boston police said they were in the city today on business on several occasions.

Among witnesses in the city today were the following:

James F. O'Rourke of South Boston, a reputed McMasters worker; Miss O'Neill, McMasters' secretary; Patrick McNeil of Dorchester, superintendent of a Boston building in which National Pensioners party headquarters is located.

OTHER WITNESSES

George Fosfrano of Melford, a printer; John J. McCov, West End, also a printer; Sam Sandanato of Quincy, an alleged McMasters worker; Gerard Ryan of Boston, an employee of the election commission; Donald R. Crane, an employee of the Quincy city clerk's department; Walter J. Webb of North Attleboro, employed in the office of the Secretary of State.

Elizabeth McCarthy of Court st., Boston, a handwriting expert; former Rep. John E. Aspell of Roxbury; John E. Buddington of Lincoln st., Boston, a telephone company employee; John Anderson of Quincy, whose signature was allegedly forged on the McMasters papers, and State Detective Ted Johnson and James Winn.

British Sub Crew Wins in Sea Epic

LONDON, Sept. 6 (AP)—The admiralty announced tonight that the British submarine Tonnant had rescued the crew of a British merchant ship and a party of Norwegian sailors from a German prize crew which had captured the ship.

The rescue was effected off Cape Finistere, northwestern corner of Spain. The British were the crew of 24 of the 5207-ton steamer Haxby, who were imprisoned aboard the 5781-ton Norwegian steamer

Tropic Sea, which the Germans were sailing to Germany.

The Haxby had been torpedoed and sunk and the Tropic Sea captured by a German surface raider. Name undisclosed, the admiralty said.

After the Tonnant's rescue, all of the British and some of the Norwegians were brought to England. The Germans and the other Norwegians were left in the ship's boats.

When the Tonnant ordered the Tropic Sea to stop the ship was scuttled by the German prize crew "by means of explosive charges which were kept ready and in position," the admiralty announcement said.

The Germans and their British and Norwegian prisoners took to the boats and the Tonnant picked up the 24 British seamen, the Norwegian captain of the Tropic Sea and his wife. The others had to be left at sea because the submarine could accommodate no more.

The boats were not overcrowded and the sea was "flat calm," according to the admiralty. RAF seaplanes immediately were sent to rescue those in the boats and brought one boat land to England.

"Having regard to weather conditions," the admiralty said, "it is probable that the other boats reached land."

Japs Map Stand On Indo-China

TOKYO, Sept. 6 (AP)—The newspaper Kokumin reported today that a meeting of key cabinet ministers had decided to reject official statements of the United States and Great Britain calling Japan's attention to their interests in maintenance of the status quo in French Indo-China.

Kokumin, considered an organ of the dominant army faction, said the decision had been reached by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye and the foreign, war and navy ministers.

WALLACE LOOSENS CORN BELT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 6
(AP)—Henry A. Wallace is scamp-ing the corn belt in informal fashion.

Without fanfare, the Democratic vice presidential nominee is moving around Illinois by automobile making speeches in the smaller agricultural communities, meeting the local party leaders and chatting intimately with farmers about the corn-hog program.

No special train is needed to accommodate his entourage, no radio backups carry his words beyond the fringes of the crowds of 1,000 to 4,000 that have turned out to hear him. All his speeches are extemporaneous and overflowing with about the tout showed lack of formality.

His Illinois itinerary is making him 1100 miles in two days with a dozen speeches scheduled between October 1 and 10. When he finishes in Illinois, Wallace plans to make the same kind of tour in Nebraska, Minnesota, Indiana,
Iowa and perhaps other states.

Usually the candidate meets all the members of his official party in one session. With him are two close friends and farm production supporters, Rep. Marvin Jones of Texas, chairman of the House committee on agriculture, and Clifford
V. Grover, of Des Moines, Iowa, is its publisher of the journal "Wallace's Farmer," formerly published by the Wallace family.

Others in the party are James
Lecran, the candidate's secretary,
Wallace's son, Robert, 29, and J.
H. Lloyd, Illinois director of agriculture. Accompanying them are a half dozen newsmen.

Although the Midwest tour is the beginning of the fall drive for the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket, the Wallace way of conducting it is not unlike the campaigns of the pre-light era—without the fanfare.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 6 (AP)—An automobile driver's own bright headlights can fool him into accidents.

This finding about night driving risks, made in a new study at Iowa State College, was announced to the American Psychological Association here today by Dr. A. R. Lauer. The university set up some photo-electric cells, which measured in terms of light just what the drivers were able to discern.

They showed, for example, the changing brightness of the beams of its own headlights spreading out in front of a speeding car.

This brightness, on the pavement six feet in front of the car, was 50 foot-candles. At 20 feet in front it was only half that brightness, and at the safe stopping limit ahead, 600 to 700 feet, only one twelve-hundredths of the close-by brightness.

"Thus," said Dr. Lauer, "a driver is often fooled by the high intensity of his light near at hand resulting in overdriving the safe visible distance ahead."

The recent Iowa tests cast a doubt, he said, on the safety of reducing the size of headlight lenses, which he declared is happening in the newer lamps. This reduction, he explained, is directly opposite to the needs of human being in good seeing.

New plans to build auto highways better to fit the average drivers eyes and mind, were outlined by Dr. T. W. Forbes, of the Yale Bureau for Street Traffic Search.

The object, he said, is not to find out what can the driver do, but what will he do.

Helene Chadwick, Film Star, Dies From Fall Over Chair

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6 (AP)—Helene Chadwick, 41, star of silent pictures with a salary once reported at $2000 a week, was dead today.

Her physician attributed her death indirectly to injuries suffered last June when she stumbled over a chair.

The actress was born in Chadwick, N. Y., a town named after her father. She began work in pictures in 1917 and later was starred by Producer Samuel Goldwyn.

As her fortune turned she achieved more or less success in talking pictures as a character actress until 1935. Since then she had worked as an extra, but always expressed confidence there would be a turn for the better.

Miss Chadwick's pictures included

"The Cup of Fury," "Dangerous Curve Ahead," "Brothers Under the Skin," "Godless Men," "Quick-sands," "Father and Son" and "Men Are Like That."

She was the former wife of Director William Wellman. They were divorced in 1923.

Funeral services will be held Friday

F. D. Makes New Plea for Speed on Draft, Defense Tax 15

Kentucky, of the House Military Committee rounded up a half-dozen members at the last minute to swing the vote the other way.

The bill as it stands exempts members of Congress from training and service and is silent on registration.

President Roosevelt at his press conference today renewed his plea for speedy congressional action on conscription, the defense tax and appropriation bills, but declined to comment on the House vote yesterday to delay actual drafting of men for a 60-day period of volunteer recruiting.

The President said he could not comment on any of the three major bills pending except to say tempus fugit (time flies).

The excess profits tax bill now is pending before the Senate finance committee. The $5,250,000,000 emergency defense appropriation bill awaits final Senate action before going to the White House.

URGES SPEED

Mr. Roosevelt added that the quicker the three bills go through the quicker the government will step up the national defense program.

When the President declined comment on the House vote to delay conscription a reporter noted that at a prior press conference, when a similar delay amendment was pending in the Senate, the President had read from a memorandum.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had given the press at that time the comment of the army chief of staff Gen. George C. Marshall.

The memorandum had opposed any delay in conscription.—Editorial Note.

He referred reporters to the stenographic notes as to what actually was said at the other interview, refusing to become involved in an argument with the newsmen over just what was said.

QUIZZED ON BASES

Previously the President said Costa Rica and Ecuador were cooperating completely with the United States in plans for defense of the Americas, but he added that no negotiations for acquisition of additional naval and air bases were now under way with any country.

Asked about reports that Costa Rica had offered to this country Cocos Island, about 600 miles northwest of the Panama Canal in the Pacific, for a base, the President replied that all he could say on that was that there was complete co-operation between Costa Rica and the United States in the defense of the Americas.

Another question was whether the Galapagos Islands, about 1000 miles southwest of the Canal, were involved in talks with Ecuador. He made the same reply, namely that Ecuador was working with this country on continental defense.

The President also took occasion to reply to those who, he said, had claimed that he did not tell the truth about the destroyer deal at several press conferences before the exchange was actually announced.

Mr. Roosevelt said that when all the official documents were disclosed sometime in the indefinite future they would show that the criticisms were a little premature.

Before the destroyer-naval base trade was announced the President had advised reporters not to speculate on whether destroyers were involved in the negotiations for bases. He said today that when he made those statements they were literally true.

A reporter inquired when the official documents might be published. Smiling Mr. Roosevelt replied that he believed the State Department had ruled they would be published in about 10 years. He then asked, in response to further questions along the same line, what the 1940 campaign had to do with national defense.

The President said that no other equipment was involved in the British trade except the guns and other equipment on board destroyers themselves.

Carol Reported In Collapse

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 6 (INS)—Branded a "murderer" by the man who ousted him from his throne, King Carol suffered a nervous collapse after his abdication and is now under the care of physicians, according to reports received in Belgrade today.

The King held up until after he had completed a dramatic farewell audience with his son and successor, King Mihai, and then broke down, the reports said.

16 Judge Duane's Son Fined On Tippy Driving Charge

Patrick J. Duane, Jr., 27, of Durham rd., Dover N. H., son of Judge and former Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham, was fined a total of $220 in Dedham court today on charges of operating a car while under the influence and leaving the scene of an accident without making his identity known.

Duane appealed the fines imposed by Judge Clifford B. Sanborn after pleading guilty to drunkenness and going away from the scene of an accident. He pleaded not guilty to driving under the influence, but was found guilty by the court.

Needham police testified that early today a car driven by Duane was in collision with another car in Great Plain ave., Needham, and that he drove away after leaving a companion at the scene.

Duane, who gave his occupation as a salesman, was released in $700 bail for appearance in superior court.

Nazis Bar Pastor From Speaking

BERLIN, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Rev. Helmuth Gollwitzer, pastor of the church formerly served by the imprisoned Rev. Martin Niemöller, left Berlin last night by order of the police, it was announced today, and was forbidden to make speeches although he will be permitted to preach sermons.

Pastor Gollwitzer at noon yesterday was given 24 hours in which to leave the city. His family was permitted to remain. The militant Pastor Niemöller has been in a Nazi prison camp three years.

ITALY BOMBED AGAIN

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The Italian high command said today that during the night, inflicting "damage of some importance" to private dwellings, the Italian high command said today.

Two upper floors of a building in the lower class quarters of San Paolo were demolished, but the tenants, who hurried to safety during the alarm, escaped injury, a communique said.

Bombs also fell in open country near the city without causing damage.

The high command reported Italian bombers attacked gasoline depots at the Suez canal and said a formation of the new Pechatelli dive bombers in future attacks virtually destroyed Fort Della Misa and set fire to a gasoline depot on the British Mediterranean island base of Malta.

The communique reported further air bombardments of British convoys in the Mediterranean and the Red sea. One freighter was reported damaged in the eastern Mediterranean, while another in the same convoy believed to be in an attack in the Aegean sea was found lying on its side in a harbor.

Two more were said to have been damaged in the Red sea.

Air Alarm Sends Berlin to Shelter

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—For the third successive morning, Berliners were driven into air-raid shelters in the early hours today by the approach of British bombing planes.

No planes appeared over the city, however, and authoritative spokesmen declared the British were driven off by anti-aircraft defenses before they could reach the capital's outskirts.

The Berlin press vented its scorn on Prime Minister Winston Churchill's address to the British House of Commons yesterday, calling it "a miserable echo to Adolf Hitler's Sportsplatz speech."

They Did 'Roll Out Barrel'—Empty

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., Sept. 6 (AP)—Bob Newingham, who lost a barrel of beer from his truck on a steep incline, inserted this advertisement in a newspaper.

"Will the party or parties who found a barrel of beer please return the empty barrel."

Someone complied—at night. The barrel was empty.

observers supposed he might seek exile more distant from his dismembered Balkan realm—possibly some place in America. Switzerland had been suggested earlier as a place of refuge. Gangs of the anti-Semitic Iron Guard, which Carol had outlawed and hundreds of whose members had died before his firing squads, roamed Bucharest, beating Jewish shopkeepers who failed to hang pictures of stalwart young Mihai in their windows.

Much of the clamor for Carol's abdication and Mihai's succession had come from the Iron Guard. Mihai had been king under a regency a decade ago while Carol was living in Paris with Mme. Lupescu.

Police made no effort to control the excesses of the Guardists. Street celebrations of Mihai's rebirth to kingship often masked the depredations of the Guardist squads.

Carol left a Rumania shrunken to pre-World War size by cessions of territory first to Soviet Russia and last week to Hungary, which by the stern arbitration of the Rome-Berlin Axis, regained about half of Transylvania.

He left Rumania in the firm hands of Premier-General Antonescu, who has aligned his new nationalist regime closely with the destinies of warring Germany and Italy.

CROWN COUNCIL OUT

It was learned on high authority that Carol slipped away from Bucharest immediately after the dramatic surrender of the throne. Few persons were aware he had gone until hours later.

The royal yacht, which had been cruising in the Black sea, supposedly with Madame Lupescu aboard, was believed to have been ordered into Constanta to meet Carol's train.

The old crown council, composed of former premiers and close confidants of Carol, was "suppressed," as the announcement said, shortly after noon today. This had been the highest governing body in the old regime.

The council had made the final decisions on surrender of Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina to Russia last June and Northern Transylvania to Hungary last week. At the same time the mayor of Bucharest, General Dombovski, was dismissed.

LEADERS ARRESTED

Earlier it was reported that Antonescu had ordered the arrest of other important figures in the Carol regime, including the munitions manufacturer, Milava, and Gen. Constantine Argetoianu, who was premier after the assassination of Premier Armand Calinescu last year.

It was Argetoianu who ordered execution of hundreds of the then outlawed Iron Guard in retaliation for the shooting of Calinescu. Princess Helen, divorced wife of the abdicated king, arrived by airplane to live with her son, one of whose first regal acts was said to have been to send for his exiled mother.

General Antonescu was reported as having sent her a wire in Dresden, Germany, saying:

"Your Majesty, in the hour in which your son has become King, I beg you to take the first train to arrive as soon as possible to be with your son to aid and lead him."

The abdication and succession climaxed reported differences between Carol and Mihai over the son's sympathy toward the Iron Guard and his desire that his mother be permitted to return.

At noon Rumania's new dictator,

Antonescu, was still without a crown prince. He went to bed for a real sleep in many days after ordering cancellation of all Rumanian passports.

ARMY IN NEW OATH

Mihai's first act was to sign over full dictatorial powers to Antonescu, who issued an order that the Rumanian army must take an oath of complete allegiance to King Mihai.

Carol, whose loves and escapades as crown prince earned him a world-wide reputation as a playboy, thus handed back the throne—this time stripped of its authority—to the boy from whom he had taken it in a coup in 1930. Mihai then had ruled for three years as the world-famed "boy king."

Carol abdicated at dawn in the presence of Gen. Antonescu as mobs of Fascist Iron Guardists—supporters of the dictatorship—rioted in the streets, demanding his abdication and threatening even greater disorders should he decline to step down.

The Iron Guardists had demonstrated most of the night, and the streets were much battered under their riotous outbursts. Steel-helmeted soldiers were called out to protect the palace. The capital was an armed camp.

PARADE TO PALACE

These demonstrations were resumed—but this time in festive spirit—following public announcement of Carol's abdication and Mihai's succession. Tens of thousands of persons stormed down Calea Victoriei carrying flags and photographs of Mihai and headed toward the palace.

Banishment of Mme. Lupescu, long an enemy of the army and the Iron Guard, was one of the first results of Antonescu's bloodless coup.

Carol issued a proclamation to his people asking them to support Mihai.

"Misfortune has come upon our country," he said, "she finds herself facing grave peril. I want to eliminate these perils by turning over to my son, whom I know you love, a great deal."

Carol referred to the breaking up of Rumania this summer by which, at the behest of Russia and Germany and Italy, she ceded away territory so that she now is back to her pre-World War size, and to the disorders which developed this week as Hungary started taking over her share.

As Carol's monarchy thus collapsed completely, Antonescu's cabinet was expected to include the Peasant Party leader, Julius Maniu, and several liberal leaders who had refused to collaborate with him until he forced Carol's abdication.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 6 The man who grumbles over chasing his hat down a wind-swept street might consider the case of Bus Driver Leonard Tozier of Lynn, Mass.

He is the man who was sitting behind the curtains of a booth in a tailor shop, nervously waiting for his trousers to be pressed.

Only the man who gets such work done on the wing can appreciate the chagrin and helplessness of a fellow under the conditions. Finally, it happened to Tozier. Gasoline exploded, ignited by the pressing machine.

Minus both pants and poise, Leonard took to his heels into Congress sq., with the tailor close behind him.

Damage was $5000 and—Leonard's dignity.

Bombs Vent Hitler Fury on London Jews

LONDON, Sept. 6 (INS)—Looting the brunt of German wrath today. Many, if not most, of its people are refugees or relatives of refugees.

Thousands of Jews driven from Germany or other lands now under the swastika, came to London in search of safety.

But those who sought it in Whitechapel and Limehouse now find large blocks of their homes and tenements nothing more than heaps of rubble, smashed flat by nightly bombings.

The Whitechapel-Limehouse area is perhaps one of the poorest tenement sections in the world. It consists of rows of rickety two-story brick houses, cheap shops and shabby apartments. The damage there today resembles the devastation in northern France.

and a blinding flash. The shelter was filled with choking dust and the lights went out.

"I was knocked off my seat onto the floor. I think I was stunned for a few minutes. Then I heard children crying, but there was no panic."

"The wardens came quickly and began digging into the earth to remove the debris and bring out the injured under the light of torches. I guess I am lucky."

"You say you are from America? It would be wonderful to be there now."

AMID THE WRECKAGE

For blocks around, these buildings lie in better shelter piles of debris, with huge bomb craters only partly filled with the wreckage of homes and smashed furniture.

But one of the most miraculous escapes of Britain's mass raids thus far happened here.

A heavy bomb struck a huge underground shelter in a park where nearly 1100 persons had taken refuge. Only two were killed. One was a man who stood at the entrance to the shelter smoking a cigarette, and the other a girl of 17 who was sitting directly below where the bomb struck. Three others were injured.

This whole tenement district, where many square blocks suffered from bombs, had only one other casualty—a woman of 60 who stayed indoors and was killed when her house was wrecked.

Rebecca Goldman, who was sitting only a few yards from the girl killed in the shelter, was still suffering from the shock of the explosion when I saw her.

WITH FURY OF QUAKE

"We all ran to the shelters when the sirens sounded," she said. "We go now even when only searchlights are seen in the sky."

"There were hundreds of us in the shelter, reading, knitting, talking or trying to get some sleep, when suddenly heavy blasts shook the ground like an earthquake."

"There was a terrific impact"

Nazis Use Reds' 'Death-Baskets'

after the longest night raid of the war—seven hours and 33 minutes—in which strewn wreckage showed the Germans had succeeded in getting through to drop bombs in virtually every district around the London balloon barrage. The third alarm lasted 59 minutes.

The air ministry said "intensive" air battles resulted in turning back attacks on several airdromes as the Germans attempted to smash their way up the Thames valley toward London, but that only "slight" damage was done to one factory in the area.

A row of 40 houses also was damaged in a dawn raid in London. Splinters killed a woman in that attack.

Later reports indicated 350 bombers and fighters had crossed the coast to make the first of the series of attacks on London and the southeast.

While London was undergoing this non-stop raid, similar alarms and attacks were occurring throughout virtually the rest of England.

Then the raiders returned just as Londoners were going to work. Anti-aircraft boomed and explosions were heard.

Workers in the city watched "ghost" battles in the sky—wreaths of white exhaust were visible, but the planes themselves were too high to be seen. The loops and curls were so thick they looked like a skein of white wool over the London district.

TOO MANY TO COUNT

The alarm came at the height of the morning rush hour and lasted an hour and 11 minutes.

The raiders streaked out of the sun in such swarms observers were unable to count them.

Airdromes were the main objectives of two formidable formations. A terrific battle was fought for 15 minutes near one of these fields.

British reports said the bomber masses, failing to hit either of the fields, were broken up and beaten off.

Two nurses were killed and a number of patients were feared to have been killed when a bomb demolished part of a hospital during a heavy night raid over a Kent town.

Doctors and nurses worked by flashlight to save as many patients as possible, and one nurse, clad in nightdress crawled over the debris to give morphia injections to wounded patients.

Three members of a bomber crew which crashed in flames over a southeastern town during the grand scale fighting this forenoon crawled out unhurt. The other crewman had bailed out.

Facts ABOUT HOOD'S SUPERTEST Verified BY THESE HOUSEWIVES

On a Supertest farm: Mrs. George F. Brewer of Newton Centre, Mrs. S. Sharpwood Smith and Mrs. J. Rodman Russ of Hingham and Mrs. Theodore K. Babcock of Reading with W. B. Mowers, D. V. M., Hood Veterinarian.

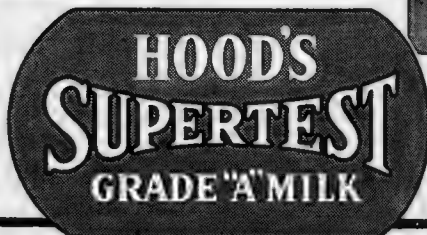

Examining special Supertest equipment on a farm—Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Harlow, Mrs. Brewer, and Mrs. Russ examine a stainless steel trainer.

In the Hood Laboratory—Dr. A. C. Fay of the Supertest Council explains to Mrs. Charles S. French of Boston how a microscopic examination is conducted.

ITS SUPER-QUALITY VERIFIED
BY COUNTLESS HOUSEWIVES

Seven mothers of growing children—careful household managers who still find time for a full and active life outside—were asked to verify the facts about Hood's Supertest Grade "A" Milk.

They did for you everything that you would do to check on the most important single food you buy for your family—Milk.

These women, at our expense, visited the barns and pastures of Supertest producers—the pick of New England's dairy farmers. They went through Hood's Milk Laboratory—one of the finest, most modern, and complete in the country. They visited the Hood Dairy Plant, and the special Supertest Bottling Room that assures complete safety.

And here are the facts they verified—a story of vital interest to every woman who is anxious to give her family the best.

7 CONSUMER VERIFIED FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW

1 VERIFIED SELECTION—For over two years, by constant attention to selection and elimination, each cow in every herd producing Supertest Grade "A" Milk is a proven quality leader. Farmers receive premium payments for their extra efforts.

2 VERIFIED PURITY—More than twice as many veterinary examinations are made than is required or is customary. This extra care is reflected in the constant high degree of purity of Supertest Grade "A" Milk.

3 VERIFIED CLEANLINESS AND CARE—Special equipment, special cooling systems, and extra sanitary procedure to safe-guard Supertest Grade "A" Milk are required, and rigidly and frequently inspected at each farm where it is produced.

4 VERIFIED PROTECTION—Supertest Grade "A" Milk is bottled in a special room, in bottles used for this Milk exclusively. All Hood plant employees are under constant medical supervision. The Milk is doubly protected with an inner and outer tamper-proof Hoodseal closure.

5 VERIFIED FLAVOR—This superior flavor has been proven by many dairy experts, and by numerous letters and compliments from customers. It is the result of constantly improved feeding methods on the farm, and automatically controlled pasteurization in the dairy plant.

6 VERIFIED CONTROL—Constant vigilance over every step in production is directly maintained by Hood's own corps of Dairy Experts.

7 VERIFIED SUPERVISION—by the Supertest Council—All Supertest Farms must maintain the necessary higher standards to qualify for the Certificate of Approved Methods issued by the Supertest Council.

Is your family getting the health and nourishment benefits of Supertest Grade "A" Milk—it costs no more than regular Grade "A"?

DOES POLITICAL TRAINING HELP?

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

Can a man without political experience of any kind become a good President? Is the fact that a man "is not a politician" an asset or a handicap?

This Fall the voters must elect a man to the most difficult office in the world, the Presidency of the United States. One of the major candidates has had more than seven years of experience in meeting the exacting problems of the White House. The other candidate, Mr. Willkie, is totally without public experience of any kind. His election would smash a precedent as old as the Republic, because every previous President has been tested, before election, in some public office of real importance.

The processes of democracy are sometimes slow and painful. Many honest citizens, becoming impatient at delay, sincerely believe that the best way to overcome this deficiency is to elect a President who has spent his life apart from politics.

The following review of the Presidency since Lincoln's time was prepared by an outstanding member of the Washington corps of journalists, who is also a keen student of history. He prefers to remain anonymous. His study is directed to those who "dislike politicians."

This group, well-meaning but unthinking, should be willing to be informed, and they are invited to examine the list of Presidents from Lincoln onward and note how their thesis stands up. If they bring impartial minds to this examination, they will find that every President who has had no previous public experience, who, in short, was not a politician, was without exception a dismal failure.

LINCOLN WAS A POLITICIAN

Lincoln was an astute politician, connected with politics from his earliest manhood. Johnson was not elected to the Presidency and his troubles were due to other causes than lack of political experience. The two administrations of Grant, who had no political training, were notorious for corruption and inefficiency. Hayes had been Governor of Ohio and his administration, though not brilliant, was efficient and respectable. Garfield, a politician and Senator-elect from Ohio, was in office only three months before his assassination, but his successor, Arthur, was experienced in politics and gave the country a clean and efficient administration.

Grover Cleveland had been District Attorney and Sheriff of Erie County, Mayor of Buffalo, and had been sweepingly elected Governor of New York. His two administrations were distinguished for their honesty and competence.

Benjamin Harrison, a former United States Senator, was not a popular President, but his ability as Chief Executive was not questioned. McKinley was Governor of Ohio two terms and served many years in the House of Representatives. Opinions differ about the success of his administration, but his hold over Congress was complete, and under him the Government worked smoothly. The Administration of Theodore Roosevelt was generally regarded as having been successful, and Theodore Roosevelt had been Police Commissioner of New York, Civil Service Commissioner, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Governor of New York—both a politician and office-holder.

Taft, who held many public offices but got most, if not all of them by appointment without going before the people, made a mess of his Administration. Woodrow Wilson, one of the truly great Presidents of modern time, had been a student of politics and President of Princeton University, but he would never have been regarded as a suitable candidate for President, nor would he have had the necessary experience in office, had he not been Governor of New Jersey.

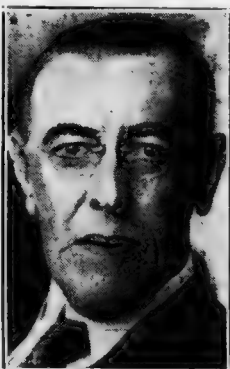

Harding was a State Senator and a United States Senator before becoming President. The scandals of his administration were due to causes other than his lack of political experience.

AND THEN CAME HOOVER

Coolidge, who succeeded Harding, had come up by every rung on the political ladder — councilman, Mayor, representative in the legislature, Senator, Lieutenant-Governor, Governor, and Vice-President. By the big business crowd which surrounds Willkie, his administration was considered highly successful, and by any standard it may be said that Coolidge understood the political aspect of his job.

Finally those who had been bawling for a business government and a businessman President got their wish in Herbert Hoover, whose nomination was put over by the same ballyhoo and political methods as those employed in the choice of Willkie. Here, it was said, was the businessman, the great engineer, without political contacts, who was going to show politicians how to run the government. The result is known to all men—the most colossal failure, the most sorry exhibition of confusion and incompetence in the history of this country.

Let those who take the responsibility of citizenship seriously consider the results of this review, which shows that every President from Lincoln to the present who took office without previous political experience was a distinct failure.

LABOR LEADER COMES TO THE DEFENSE OF WILLKIE

By CARLISLE BARGERON

(Assigned by Republican National Committee)

Jim Farley left Washington beloved by, and with the respect of, every man with whom he had come in contact. This is true of Democrats and Republicans, and of newspaper men everywhere. Jim was a political leader and organizer, not a political BOSS.

Ed Is Out

In Deep Water

Manifestly, you would not expect Boss Ed Flynn to be able to step into his shoes. But with that native intelligence which made him Boss of the Bronx, you would think he would study Jim's record and try to model his career as closely to it as possible. The fact seems to be that if he were, by chance, made Secretary of State, he would continue to be a Bronx Boss, giving sacks of coal to people for their votes.

A few days ago he adopted as his own, wholly unfounded charges about Wendell Willkie's labor record which appeared in a Leftist magazine and to which the writer would not sign his name.

From Eugene E. Scott, business manager of Local No. 702 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers affiliated with the A. F. of L., immediately came this defense. Here is the account of what happened, as reported by the New York Herald Tribune, Wednesday, Sept. 4:

"From Springfield, Ill., Eugene E. Scott, business manager of Local 702 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, affiliated with the A. F. of L., telegraphed that he had CONDUCTED NEGOTIATIONS with the Central Illinois Light Company for many years and THIS COMPANY HAS NEVER USED TEAR GAS OR OTHER WEAPONS."

(This is what Boss Flynn had charged.) "As stated by me previously," concluded the message from Mr. Scott, "THEIR LABOR POLICY HAS BEEN AND IS 1000 PER CENT SATISFACTORY."

At Rushville, Ind., Mr. Willkie, himself, indignantly told the Associated Press:

"THERE IS NOBODY CONNECTED WITH ANY ORGANIZATION THAT I HAVE EVER BEEN ASSOCIATED WITH WHO EVER TESTIFIED BEFORE THE LAFOLETTE CIVIL LIBERTIES COMMITTEE. SOME OF THE COMPANIES THAT I WAS FORMERLY CONNECTED WITH HIRED PEOPLE TO RUDE AS INSPECTORS ON STREET CARS CHECKING FARES AND REGISTERING METHODS OF OPERATION. BUT ANY STATEMENT BY FLYNN WHICH INFERS OR IMPLIES IN ANY WAY THAT THERE WAS EVER ANY TESTIMONY BEFORE THE LAFOLETTE COMMITTEE THAT ANY COMPANY OF COMMONWEALTH AND SOUTHERN EMPLOYED A LABOR SPY IS COMPLETELY FALSE. THERE IS NO SUCH TESTIMONY BEFORE THE LAFOLETTE COMMITTEE."

(Boss Flynn charged there was, yet the records of the committee are open to everyone.)

The Herald Tribune reports this telegram from Ross S. Wallace, president of the Central Illinois Light Company, Peoria, Ill.

"The facts are that the Central Illinois Light Company HAS NEVER HAD A STRIKE OR OTHER LABOR TROUBLES. In 1931 it purchased a small amount of tear gas for vault use at the time of a burglary scare.

"In 1935 it purchased twelve baby grand gas guns and 36 shells for use of its regular employees patrolling its own lines against possible sabotage at a time when there was a strike on ANOTHER company's property in no way corporately connected with the Central Illinois Light Company."

From Atlanta, Ga., came this statement from Preston S. Arkwright, president of Georgia Power Company, which was also cited by Boss Flynn:

"The statement of Edward J. Flynn that Mr. Willkie's Georgia Power Co. spent $31,000 on labor spies from Pinkerton is absolutely false. Not only is it false, but also the statement 'We have the evidence before the LaFollette Investigating Committee' is absolutely false. There was no such evidence, NOR DID MR. FLYNN HAVE ANY EVIDENCE OR INFORMATION TO THIS EFFECT. NO SUCH EVIDENCE CAN POSSIBLY EXIST, BECAUSE WE HAVE NOT EMPLOYED ANY LABOR SPIES. AND NOBODY ACCUSES US OF IT EXCEPT 'BOSS FLYNN.'"

Mr. Arkwright also explained that operators were employed to check on street car receipts.

THE FACTS ARE THAT WILLIAM GREEN, PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR, HAS PRO-NOUNCED THE GEORGIA POWER COMPANY'S LABOR RECORD "SATISFACTORY."

Just Ask

Bill Green

A FURTHER FACT IS THAT COMPANIES WITH WHICH MR. WILLKIE WAS FORMERLY ASSOCIATED HAVE THREE SATISFACTORY CONTRACTS WITH THE CIO.

Boss Flynn will never be a Jim Farley! And he should quit reading Leftist journals.

Carol Inspects a Tank

Quits Again

Weak-chinned, watery-eyed Carol of Rumania again comes to the end of his rope... and quits again, leaving his troubled kingdom to his son, Mihai, fleeing again to the arms of his red-headed Jewish sweetheart, Magda Lupescu, whose banishment he agreed to only a few days ago. In 1930, when he returned to Bucharest and took back the throne he relinquished to his son in 1925, he tried to act the part of a king... promising and carrying out some reforms. Later, his fair charmer came to him... and his stock as king fell to new low.

King Carol... After Return to Throne in 1930

Royal Father and Son Inspect Army as Powers Planned Partition of Rumania

CAROL'S LOVES LONG ROMANIA'S HEADACHE

By PAUL MIELTON

Once again the Graustarkian Carol of Rumania is in trouble and once again, as always, he has fled to the arms of a woman.

The mercurial monarch who abdicated the Rumanian throne today in favor of his son Mihai, has been ousted out of the country, unwillingly this time, however, in contrast to his previous flights.

Since 1918 Carol's escapades have been a headache to his country, his family and, presumably, to himself, and now, approaching his 47th birthday on Oct. 17, he finds himself once more at loose ends—this time perhaps for keeps.

King Carol II of Rumania did not come inexplicably, however, into the role of a romanticist. His mother, the late Queen Marie of Rumania, was once a noted royal flirt in the courts of Europe, delighting in quick and violent intrigues with the best-looking men she met.

King Carol II of Rumania did not come inexplicably, however, into the role of a romanticist. His mother, the late Queen Marie of Rumania, was once a noted royal flirt in the courts of Europe, delighting in quick and violent intrigues with the best-looking men she met.

Ferdinand, who came to be no slouch himself at romantic intrigue, had been adopted, four years before the marriage, by his uncle, the late King Charles I, who had no children, and had been made Crown Prince of Rumania.

Carol was born in 1893 of this union which produced, in all, six children, despite the practically unbroken dislike which grew up between Ferdinand and Marie.

Until 1918 the role of Crown Prince sat lightly upon Carol, handsome, dashing, cavalry officer. But then, soon after Rumania's entry into the World War on the side of the Allies, he abandoned his regiment in the first campaign and disappeared.

BRIDAL VOIDED

Bucharest was shocked a little later to learn that he had eloped to Odessa in Russia and married a commoner, Jeanne Marie Valentina Lambrino, better known as "Zizi," the daughter of an artillery major.

Pressure was brought to bear on Carol by his outraged family to break with his young bride and come home, when all would be forgiven. For months he resisted but finally, after the marriage had been declared void by a Rumanian court in June, 1919, he consented to recognize the annulment decree, even though his morganatic wife then was an excretant mother.

MARRIES HELENE

Meanwhile his parents—probably in the main, as she was a zealous matchmaker, selected a bride of equal blood with him, Princess Helene, daughter of King Constantine of Greece.

CAROL AND LUPESCU
Again King Abdicate

Now in a chaste and modest manner, Carol agreed to the arrangement and his marriage to the thin-lipped Helene was celebrated with great pomp at Athens on March 10, 1921.

Before the end of that year, Prince Mihai was born to the couple, the youth who today again assumed the Rumanian throne which his father had taken from him in 1930.

THEN CAME MAGDA

If Marie and Ferdinand, Helene had thought, how could this union would blot the picture of "Zizi," they were sadly mistaken. Carol's love, the commoner, now the most of his son, Mircea, was wavering and he corresponded with her constantly.

Thus it was that, within a year, the marriage to the Greek princess fell apart. Where and when Carol met Magda Lupescu, red-headed woman who was to play the biggest part in his life has always been obscure.

She does not appear to have been in the picture publicly to the last day of 1925, when he became known that Carol, renounced his rights of succession to the throne, and with them all prerogatives of rank, including membership in the family royal, and had been playing for some time in Bucharest.

It was reported then that

FEASTING IN PARIS and Rushes to Her Side

Carol's revolt was against Premier Jon Bratiano, member of a family which, for 30 years, had been probably more powerful in Rumania than the royal family itself.

Soon after his renunciation, however, Carol began to be seen with the red-headed Magda in Paris.

SHE DIVORCED

Magda, born in 1897 or 1898, as Jassey, Rumanian, was the daughter of a Viennese dancer and a druggist originally named Wolf, who adopted the Latinized version of his name, Lupescu, from "Lupus," a wolf.

As a school girl in Jassey, she was the envy of all her classmates as a flame-haired beauty and a pace-setter in highly temperamental and dangerous flirtations.

She was married, when very young, to a Rumanian army officer, one Lieut. Tarnopolsky, who was then badly in need of a dowry but who shortly divorced her.

SON, 6, KING

Such was the woman with whom Carol had taken up in Paris. Known for years there as "The Rumanian Pompadour," she came to exercise over Carol a almost magical influence which frustrated every effort of rivals and enemies to drive her behind the throne through her Carol had erected for herself by his erasing her charms over powerful political chieftains. But now the castle has turned was forgotten—all was forgotten—until 1927, when Carol's father died. From Paris, Carol requested permission to attend the funeral but was refused.

Prince Mihai, then six years old, was proclaimed King under the succession law of Rumania and a regency was appointed for the period of his minority.

From then until 1930, Carol and Lupescu drifted in and out of Paris, visiting various countries and capitals.

There came cables across the sea in May, 1928, that Carol and his red-headed woman had been invited to leave England, the British government viewing his intrigues with disapproval—evidence that even then Carol was endeavoring to get back his lost Rumanian crown from his son.

HELENE'S DIVORCE

Magda was generally credited with being the spur behind this intrigue, on the hypothesis that she saw a title for herself when the throne should be regained. It was declared that Carol, organizing his forces in England, and been chartering planes for scattering posters over Bucharest, posters ransacking his claims to the throne and withdrawing his solemn renunciation of 1925.

On June 21, 1928, Helene divorced him in Bucharest, charging "violation of the sanctity and dignity of marriage" and abandonment of the child, Mihai.

KING AND EXILE

Then, on June 6, 1930, Carol returned to Bucharest in a French airplane and was given an enthusiastic welcome. His brother, the regency, the Parliament and most of the cabinet ministers declared themselves in his favor.

It was reported, too, that Queen Mother Marie had backed her eldest son's efforts to win back the throne from her grandson.

Two days after Carol's arrival, Parliament, while huge crowds cheered outside, formally annulled all decrees and acts relating to the former Crown Prince and recognized Carol II as the lawful King.

Not long afterward, Magda Lupescu arrived and was established in an ornate villa near Bucharest.

Through the last decade, Carol surprised diplomats of the world by functioning as a strong-handed ruler, winning recognition as such despite continued whispers of enemies to drive her behind the throne through her erasing her charms over powerful political chieftains.

But now the castle has turned was forgotten—all was forgotten—until 1927, when Carol's father died. From Paris, Carol requested permission to attend the funeral but was refused.

Festival—More ready for the lighter than the heavier side of kingship, Carol of Rumania was ever ready to act in such roles as this... at the cost of archers in Bucharest.

NEW ENGLAND can co-operate with the Federal Government in the national defense program more effectively than any other section of the country.

So declares Dudley Harmon, executive vice-president of the New England Council.

Mr. Harmon is not boasting or giving vent to wishful thinking. He is appraising the situation accurately.

According to the recent statement of Col. H. K. Rutherford of the U. S. Ordnance Department, 1500 industrial plants in our six States have been earmarked as production centers for munition orders alone.

A survey undertaken by the Associated Industries reveals that 131 factories in Massachusetts are producing tools, materials and accessories for aircraft builders.

Our textile mills, employing thousands of workers, could clothe the entire Army, Navy, Marine Corps and aviation forces and still have an adequate surplus for civilians.

Our shoe shops, long famous for the production of the world's best footwear, are equipped to fill all the orders the government will place.

The truth is that New England began to organize years ago, not for war but for PEACE and EXPANSION.

As the region nearest to the European Continent, we want no war and consequently look with extreme displeasure on all political efforts to get us into one.

But if war is forced upon us, we can be trusted to do more than our share to defend and preserve America.

DR. HANS ZINSSER, Harvard Medical School professor and distinguished scientist, is dead, a victim of incurable leukemia.

The world will long remember Dr. Zinsser, as the world already remembers Galileo, Newton, Pasteur and Ehrlich.

Before Dr. Zinsser's birth 62 years ago, typhus fever was one of the most dreaded of all diseases to which the human race is subject.

Now, because he lived and worked and suffered—even to the point of contracting the malady himself—every nation has at its disposal the Zinsser method of mass vaccination against typhus—a discovery which may save hundreds of thousands of lives annually.

But this, despite its obvious great worth, is not Dr. Zinsser's principal accomplishment.

In the form of a book, titled "As I Remember Him" and modestly written in the third person, he bequeathed to mankind a richer legacy of hope and reconciliation.

Aware that his illness could terminate only in the grave, Dr. Zinsser faced death with the unflinching courage with which he had faced life. He wrote of himself objectively and concluded:

"In the prospect of death, life seemed to be given a new meaning and fresh poignancy. From now on, instead of being saddened he found—to his own delighted astonishment—that his sensitiveness to the simplest experiences, even for such things that in other years he might hardly have noticed, was infinitely enhanced.

"When he awoke in the morning, the early sun striking across the bed, the light on the branches of the trees outside his window, the noise of his sparrows, and all the sounds of the awakening street aroused in him all kinds of gentle and pleasing memories of days long past which had left their imprints—indelible but, until now, not consciously realized—of contentment and happiness."

His only note of pessimism was when he looked beyond the confines of his home and viewed economic and political problems.

"Great racial masses," he said, "seemed willing to fight and perish, if necessary, for their own enslavement. New so-called 'ideologies' were tearing up the foundations of all that men had thought firm and permanently established.

"And the intellectual calamity seemed to be that no one could say whether the turmoil was the result of avoidable stupidity or of the operation of laws of economic and social evolution that were acting on mankind as other laws had acted on the dinosaur and the saber-toothed tiger.

"At the time of his death he was as thoroughly bewildered as any thoughtful individual of our time is bound to be."

Unlike dictators, tyrants and let-me-do-it-all politicians who seldom say anything except themselves, Dr. Zinsser, whose life had been devoted in large measure to contemplation of Nature's mightiest forces, learned to realize his own human weakness and limitations.

As did the great Tennyson, he had come to know that "true humility is the highest virtue, mother of them all."

On The Side

THE CAFE de La Rotonde on Montparnasse was recently mentioned in Paris dispatches. It was at the Rotonde during the World War that Lenin and Trotsky used to get together, over black coffee, to plan the Russian revolution. Mati Hari, the spy, was also a regular patron . . . Women in style, it is stated, will this Fall wear skirts 18 inches from the floor. Seems the time is propitious for a revival of that old ditty "They're Wearing Them Higher in Hawaii" . . . From 1904 to 1914, 10,000,000 immigrants arrived in the U. S. A. from Europe. At one time in this period, steerage passage from Europe could be purchased for $10 . . . An employment expert says the reason most secretaries like their jobs is not due to interest in their work but because their boss is "a lovely man to work for."

A—Romania . . . Q—Next to New York, Boston and Hollywood, what city in America has the best dressed women? A—Dallas, Texas . . . Q—Why is it most successful men are of the heavy type? TALLULAH BANKHEAD, DRAMATIC STAGE STAR Found Fame in London After Neglect in America

JACK KIERAN is a sports scribe and "Information, Please" star. It may be a new trend is developing in film idol types, for when a short subject film in which Jack appears was being shown, I heard a young woman says: "I think that Kieran is real cute" . . . Jacques Bustanony is a cafe maestro. The name of Bustanony was known in game in the pre-war era of Murrys, Churchills, Reisenwebers, Rectors, Delmonico's, etc. In those days at the best bar on Broadway, in the old Knickerbocker Hotel, you could get two high class cocktails for a quarter. Said purchase also entitled you to a Grand A free ham sandwich . . .

DOROTHY BARRETT, chorus girl, has a quaint hobby. She collects photographs of Joan Crawford.

She has more than 19,000. Incidentally, one of Joan Crawford's hobbies was keeping a scrapbook of the columns of the late O. O. McIntyre . . . Tallulah Bankhead is a very dramatic actress. In the dim past, Tallulah went to Hollywood to set the world of the cinema on fire. But she couldn't get a job, even though she had a letter from Joe Tumulty, secretary of Woodrow Wilson, to Doug Fairbanks, Sr. No Broadway stage producer would give her a job either. So she went to London, played in "The Green Hat" and became one of Piccadilly's darlings. Everybody, including the now Duke of Windsor, called her "Talo." Now Miss Bankhead is the fourth lady of the American theater. Maybe it's the fifth—but she's doing all right.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Sept. 6—I spent most of Wednesday morning at a meeting of the United States Committee for the Care of European Children, and returned to my apartment for a short conference with Mrs. Henry A. Ingraham and Miss Emma P. Hirth, of the Young Women's Christian Association.

I am becoming almost self-conscious about the fact everybody who comes to my apartment, arrives at the top of the three flights of stairs in a perfectly breathless condition. Now I warn everybody beforehand that I shall meet them somewhere else if they mind climbing three flights of stairs.

I really think the introduction of elevators, while very convenient, has probably made life too easy for us. As a little girl, I can remember that two flights of stairs were a matter of course to all of us, and three flights of stairs, nothing extraordinary. In fact, I was much annoyed when I was forbidden to slide down the banisters the whole way, for it was not considered safe until I reached the lowest flight of stairs.

IN THE EVENING Mrs. Grace Murphy came to see me to ask if I would speak for her group in Cincinnati, Ohio, which is opposed to the selective draft. I listened to Mr. Norman Thomas Wednesday night over the radio on this subject. No one hearing him could refrain from feeling that he was a most able and persuasive speaker.

With Mr. Thomas and Senator George Norris, one knows that one is listening to people of absolute sincerity. Their reasons might not be entirely similar to reasons put forth by the women for whom Mrs. Murphy speaks, but I think all of us should listen to both sides of the question and not make up our minds until we feel we have heard equally good presentations of the problem.

We drove up from New York City yesterday morning, and the autumn colors are beginning to show on the trees. My purple loosestrife is fading and its brilliance will soon be gone. We saw two deer run across the parkway, a most unusual sight.

On arrival at Hyde Park, I found that our Norwegian guests were comfortably established and had apparently had pleasant weather while we were gone. Little Franklin, III, has returned from Maine, but he was asleep right after lunch so I have not seen him.

At my cottage, Diana Hopkins, arrived early yesterday morning from Illinois. She had a good play with the other children at the pool and all of them plan to go swimming again this afternoon. I never cease to marvel at the way the young Norwegians take the cold water. They do not even gasp as they go in.

NAZIMOVA RETURNS TO OLD HOME

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—In the smallest quarters available at the hotel known as the Garden of Allah lives Alla Nazimova, who is in Hollywood completing one of the important assignments in MGM's "Escape" . . . The hotel proper, now surrounded by bungalows for guests, was once the home in which Alla Nazimova lived . . . "But I prefer this way," said the distinguished actress. "What a relief—not to have to worry about the expense of running this large place."

CHATTER: Ben Hecht and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., are planning an independent production unit . . . Lewis Milestone, who directed the John Steinbeck movie, "Of Mice and Men," is arranging a deal whereby he will direct another Steinbeck story, "Red Pony" . . . Artie Shaw will work for Walt Disney . . . Sophie Tucker is completing her autobiography, "Life of a Red Hot Momma" . . . Moss Hart phoned Fannie Brice for the starring role in the new Kaufman & Hart comedy, but Fannie pleaded that she is too busy. "I can't go to N. Y., said Fannie, "and just drop my job of decorating Ira Gershwin's new house" . . . Oscar Levant told the author of a satirical movie which flopped: "You wrote with your tongue—but not in your cheek."

DEDUCTION: When Robert Benchley had his income tax statement examined by a representative of the Collector of Internal Revenue, Benchley hesitatingly asked one question. "Under this deduction marked 'CONTRIBUTIONS,'" said Benchley, "would that be the proper place to put down Contributing to the Delinquency of Minors?"

WEIGHT: Clifford Odets arrived a few days ago and held reunion with his Group Theater colleague, John Garfield. "I'm exercising to reduce," said Garfield. "How much do you think I weigh?" . . . Odets measured him with the practiced eye of a Coney Island weight-guesser and then said: "I know you don't look your weight. I'd say you weigh about 140" . . . "I weigh 150," Garfield informed . . . "Well," Odets shrugged, "you weigh ten pounds more than you don't look."

MESSAGE: Alfred Hitchcock, whose newest thriller, "Foreign Correspondent," is one of the most masterful jobs ever accomplished in Hollywood, went to Jack White's 18 Club in N. Y. during his last visit, and promised to send White a postcard from Hollywood . . . Hitchcock prepared a postcard six feet long and three feet wide, and on it wrote his message: "This is in case the postman is near sighted."

HOMAGE: Only two citizens of Hollywood have encountered any uneasiness in the presence of Sir Cedric Hardwicke . . . "It's bad to have a 'Sir' in front of your name," said Artie Shaw. "I can't call you Hardwicke, because that sounds like a buller—and Sir Cedric is too formal." Shaw compromises and calls him "Cecil" . . . Hardwicke later played pocket billiards with Groucho Marx as his partner and missed an easy shot. The distraught Groucho turned to the onlookers and asked: "How do you tell a British nobleman he stinks?"

CREDIT: RKO's most successful release this year will be the new Charles Laughton picture, "They Knew What They Wanted," directed by Garson Kanin. When the credit-rushes were shown at the studio, Kanin noticed that after the title of the picture appeared the name of Harry Edington, Executive Producer at RKO . . . The young director went to Edington's office and suggested that the title be followed by the name of Sidney Howard, who won a Pulitzer Prize for writing the play. "They Knew What They Wanted" . . . Edington laughed at this suggestion and said: "You're kidding" . . . "I'm not," Kanin assured. "You had very little to do with this picture" . . . "You're kidding," Edington laughed . . . "But I'm not," Kanin insisted. "I'll bet you $10 that you don't even know the name of the picture. I'm serious. I'll bet you $10 you don't even know the title" . . . "Okay, it's a bet," Edington agreed, matching the ten spot. "The title is 'They Got What They Wanted.'"

SOPHIE TUCKER

EXCLUSIVE: It will be all the Zogs of Albania, including the King's three sisters whose visit thrilled Boston in 1938, that Eastern society will have a chance to entertain soon . . . The King, his wife and small son, born when Zog abdicated, are expected to include Boston in their itinerary . . . And friends of the former ruling house of Albania in New York say that the three "Zog sisters" wouldn't skip Boston for the world.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: He is the master of the M. Mayfair's new show, and the master of the magic-maker Gullu Gullu . . . Gullu Gullu is a wizard under the extreme disadvantage of having a rival precede him . . . In addition to having a professional name that might be confused readily with Gullu Gullu, the rival wizard—according to Gullu and many neutral observers—showed New York all of Gullu's bag of tricks before the advent of The Master.

THIS HAS HAPPENED OCCASIONALLY in show-business . . . George Givot, the "Greek Ambassador of Good Will"—and what, by the way, has happened to the Greek dialecticians?—was first of his type on Broadway . . . But several imitators beat him to the airwaves . . . Gullu Gullu's consummate skill undoubtedly will triumph over all obstacles, including imitators . . . Meanwhile, a neat little stunt—if they pull it—is a private competition being cooked up for a small audience by certain lusty spirits of the after-dark scene.

THIS SET-TO WILL MATCH DR. GIOVANNI of the Ritz Roof and Gullu Gullu in a test of tricks . . . The elfin George "Man About Boston" W. Clarke is one of the investigators of the match . . . What the comic and talented Dr. Giovanni probably doesn't know is that Gullu Gullu nurses a small grudge against him—the doctor.

THE MAYFAIR'S FEATURED attraction alleges that the doctor's famous "ring trick," in which he miraculously encircles the center of a drum stick with a ring while each end of the stick is being held in the clinched fists of a volunteer stogie, is purloined from a Gullu creation . . . Elliot Daniels of Boston, pianist with Rudy Vallee's band, denies N. Y. reports that he is engaged to Ross Alexander's widow, the former Anne Nagel of the fillums (and Jamaica Plain) . . . Kitty Brando will be in action in a spot not far from her demolished nightclub, but the place will not be ready in time for the American Legion convention.

ERNIE HOLST'S CHARMING blonde singer, Ann Kless (a Washington debbie) resembles both Adelaide Moffett (Buckner) and Cobina Wright, Jr. (who don't resemble one another) . . . And when Evelyn Kenny, the Brighton beauty was in New York last week, a rumor got around that she was Judy Garland . . . A New York cameraman added in the general confusion by posing Miss Kenny for a half-dozen shots . . . The press department of the World's Fair finally rescued Evelyn and succeeded in convincing the photographer that Miss Garland was in Hollywood . . . He, it turned out, had been fooled with the crowd.

THE GIRL IN NEW YORK who could lend authentic atmosphere to a Hawaiian spot, while at the same time being able really to sing, is Wini Shaw . . . Miss Shaw is one-quarter Hawaiian—and part Scotch and Irish . . .

ZOG PRINCESSES TO VISIT HUB AGAIN

Abducted Albanian King to Accompany Them

William "Hiker" Joy, the Boston "L" trustee, and former Governor Hurley were Jim Connors' guests at the Gannett penthouse . . . A strong roster for Boston College, which he coached when the former Governor was a first-string guard (in 1914), "Hiker" fears the "senior light" . . . The boys play a more restrained game sometimes during the graduating June is only nine months away . . . Coach Frank Leahy's wisdom and talent will be sufficient to keep the spirit high, Mr. Joy feels sure . . . And the chances of making the professional draft now serves to spur such seniors whose ambitions lie in that direction, to greater efforts . . . Pro football salaries are increasing each year, incidentally, and the formation of an American League will afford at least two hundred new pro jobs.

COOPER STARS IN 'FIGHTING SONS'

By Louella O. Parsons

Jackie Cooper

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—I was looking over some old photographs and I found one taken with Jackie Cooper—not more than seven years ago at a party . . . He was then at M-G-M and wore short pants and was about ten years old. Well, Jackie's a young man now and he's been away from Metro for more than a year. In the meantime he has done all right for himself, practically every other studio in town. Come June 1941 he'll be back at M-G-M—the first time since he decided he was too old, at the tender age of 14, to continue his acting career. He has the lead in "Fighting Sons" with Bonita Granville and Gene Reynolds.

M-G-M with Gene Reynolds, who is now in the second season of his contract with the studio, and Bonita Granville, who is now in the second season of her contract with the studio, are much encouraged over her condition . . .

REPUBLIC has settled on Ann Miller for Gene Autry's leading lady in "Melody Ranch." The other day when I was at the Republic studio all any of them talked about was a leading lady for Gene Autry's picture. "We'll spend real money," they told me, "to get the right gal to play opposite him." Today Ann Miller, who was in the "Hit Parade of 1941" was chosen and this is the first time she will play a dramatic part. Remember how cute Ann was in "You Can't Take It With You" in a comedy role? It is Republic's plan to build her and since the company is doing bigger and better things you'll find they'll soon have an important stock company signed up. By the way, Ann's engagement to Maurice Weizelbaum seems to be over. She and John Carroll were twining at the House of Murphy.

IT SHOULDN'T SURPRISE anybody that the very funny Marjorie Main, who was a riot in "The Women" and "Susan and God" has been handed a long term contract by M-G-M. The wonder to me is that some studio hasn't snapped her long ere now, for Marjorie, in addition to being a grand comedienne is a fine character actress. Remember her as the tragic mother in "Dead End"? Metro signed Marjorie on the strength of her clowning as the lady blacksmith in Wally Beery's "Wyoming" and I have a hunch they'll pair her with Beery again in his two forthcoming pictures, "Combat Car" and "Get A Horse."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Arline Judge's latest New York escort is Jack Dempsey, no less; Buster Collier is due for a lot of kidding—on account of he is home sick with the mumps; Anthony Quinn and his two-year-old son, Christopher are at Cedars of Lebanon both suffering from a jaw infection; Wesley Ruggles and his bride, the former Marcel Røge, leave Oct. 1 for a four-month vacation going to New York and South America; Miss Ruby Schinasi entertaining with a farewell party at the El Mirador for her daughter Bubbles who leaves Wayne Morris and Hollywood for New York.

LIZ WHITNEY finally gets away on Thursday for Honolulu. She'll be the house guest of Doris Duke Cromwell. John Shelton's divorce becomes final the end of the week in Nevada. Miss Shuster, who was formerly Sally Sage, Lettie Davis' stand-in, has matrimony plans; Lois Andrews at Grauman's Chinese with Allan Hansen — by permission of George Jessel Jackie Cooper whispered to a friend that he has a date with Betty Grable to take her to dinner; Errol Flynn and Gaiety Ireland, Hollywood's expert tennis players, will meet the Eastern tennis team on Sept. 14-15.

WANDA MACKAY and Marshall E. Mason are undoubtedly absorbed in each other at the House of M. Mrs. E. E. Bartholemew and his new automobile is in the RKO lot every day. The attraction is Ann G. Sullivan in "Little Men"; Eddie Albert has bought a boat and is plotting another one of his Mexican expeditions. He better not get lost this time; Gary Cooper has the flu. Feel sorry for him for I've had it myself for three days and it ain't no fun; Elaine Barrie, looking pensive at the Brown Derby all by her lonesome. As we told you several days ago she and John are between makeups;

W. R. Hearst Hailed For Patriotic Stand

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 6.—The 29th Division Association's resolution commending the Hearst newspapers for their patriotism and championing of the Veterans' program, follows:

"Whereas, the cause and welfare of the veteran can best succeed when it has been duly presented to and accepted by the public for its all-powerful support; and

"Whereas, the veterans' program not only for the adequate care of the disabled veterans and their widows and orphans but for the adequate defense of the nation in time of peace or war has been actively championed by William Randolph Hearst and his vast editorial enterprises, particularly the Baltimore News-Post and Baltimore Sunday American; now therefore,

"Be it resolved, the 29th Division Ass'n. in national convention at Norfolk, Va., this the 31st day of August, 1940, do commend William Randolph Hearst and his nationwide newspapers for their loyalty and devotion to the known cause and welfare of the nation's veterans, and for their untiring and ceaseless demand that the United States at all times be adequately prepared to defend its shores, its homes and democratic institutions, so priceless to its free citizens.

"We further commend Mr. Hearst for his outstanding and commendatory patriotism, as a great American, and further commend him for his nationwide campaign to put the American flags in American court-rooms, particularly in Baltimore, where more than a score of the flags of our country have been presented all Baltimore city court-rooms.

"We pledge our unstinted support to his Americanism campaign and attacks upon Communism and other foreign 'isms' threatening destruction of our institutions."

Norman Thomas Sees U. S. Headed for War

AKRON, O., Sept. 6 (AP)—Norman Thomas, Socialist, candidate for President, declared here that President Roosevelt's foreign policy "may quite possibly put us into war even before the election."

Opening his national campaign Thomas said in a prepared speech that the President's foreign policy "has not been consistent or unyielding, but dangerously inconsistent and contradictory."

Maurice Evans In Hayes Cast

Maurice Evans, the extraordinarily successful actor-producer of Shakespearean plays for the past several seasons, will portray the role of Malvolio to Helen Hayes' Viola in "Twelfth Night."

According to present plans of the producers, the Theater Guild and Gilbert Miller, rehearsals will commence within two weeks and there will be out-of-town appearances in Guild subscription cities before the New York premiere.

In addition to Miss Hayes and Evans, Sophie Stewart will be seen as Olivia and June Walker as Maria. Margaret Webster will direct and the settings are being designed by Stewart Chaney.

Another wish fulfillment concerning season will bring about for Miss Hayes concerns her new radio contract with Columbia Broadcasting Company enabling her to select her own plays—"plays I've always wanted to do."

FRANCIS FARMER provides plenty of heart interest in "Flowing Gold," opening today at the Scollay and Modern.

New Films on Many Screens

Tomorrow's screen bill at the Washington St. Olympia will feature "Andy Hardy Meets a Debutante," latest adventure in the Hardy family starring Mickey Rooney with Lewis Stone and Judy Garland, and "The Captain Is a Lady," with Charles Coburn, Beulah Bondi, Virginia Grey and Helen Broderick in the screen version of Rachel Crothers' stage hit, "Old Lady 31."

For the four days starting tomorrow, Bowdoin Square screen will show "New Moon," co-starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, and "They Drive By Night," with George Raft and Ann Sheridan.

Normandie Theater, for the four days beginning tomorrow, will present "All This, and Heaven Too," Bette Davis' latest starring picture with Charles Boyer, and "Queen of the Mob," with Ralph Bellamy and Blanche Yurka.

On the Bijou screen through tomorrow is "Bill of Divorcement," with Maureen O'Hara, Adolphe Menjou and Fay Bainter.

"Northwest Passage," with Spencer Tracy, Robert Young and Nat Pendleton, and "Charles McCarthy Detective," starring the puckish Woodenhead with Edgar Bergen, Mortimer Snerd and Robert Cummings, may be seen on the Square screen throughout tomorrow evening.

Continuing through tomorrow on Tremont screen are "Lillian Russell," starring Alice Faye with Don Ameche, Edward Arnold and Henry Fonda, and "Two Girls on Broadway," with Lana Turner, Joan Blondell and George Murphy.

Book Comedy For Plymouth

Those indefatigable collaborators, George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, have done it again! Another comedy has emerged from their fecund typewriters, while their last one "The Man Who Came to Dinner," is hardly winded as it approaches its first anniversary, an event that will take place on Oct. 16.

The new one bears the singularly provocative title of "George Washington Sept Here," and is scheduled to be shown here at the Plymouth Theater, beginning Thursday night, Sept. 26.

Least the title convey an impression that the Kaufman-Hart play is a period piece with Colonial trappings and three-cornered hats, the Sam H. Harris office has to announce that it is a modern comedy, dealing with a present-day American family, and that the humor is much in the same genre as "You Can't Take It With You," by the same authors.

ERROL FLYNN SUPERB IN MET'S 'THE SEA HAWK' THRILLER

Star's Heroics Amaze Patrons

By DON WARD

Heroics done in the best theatrical style make "The Sea Hawk," now at the Met, one of the biggest thrills on the screen today.

Warner boosters shout: "Flynn in action." The same Errol Flynn who furnished so much excitement with his swashbuckling work in "Captain Blood," "Robin Hood" and "Prince and Pauper."

Handsome, stalwart, lithe as a panther, a swordsman who can take on half a dozen brawling opponents as he fights his way from the portcullis to the endangered queen's chambers, the epic young Irishman is the ideal hero for this pulsating drama of sea fights and dark intrigue in the breathless days when the Spaniards dared to challenge England's game Queen Bess.

Geoffrey Thorpe, alias "The Sea Hawk," was a deep-sea Robin Hood, raiding the Spanish main for the greater glory and profit of his mates in particular and all Englishmen in general; and even though they trap him once, through treachery at home, and put him and his men in the terrible galley, there to be whipped day and night as they rowed their captors around, he has the wit and the brawn to get free and wreck the plot to topple Elizabeth from her throne.

The Sea Hawk battles on land and sea against the upstart Spaniards and later against the traitors surrounding Elizabeth and trying to prevent him from warning her make this spectacular Warner film rip-raring entertainment—something to stir the coldest blood and a cheerer two for the good old days when knights were bold and well worth any fair lady's favors.

The lady in the case is the Spanish ambassador's daughter, played by Brenda Marshall. But this is romance interlarded with the perfect happenings. For of course the wise Elizabeth betwixt knighthood on her reckless sea champion and that brings on the wedding bells. Flynn is the dominant figure in this magnificent transatlantic melodrama directed for the Warners by Michael Curtiz. You can give a hand to England's gifted Clara Robson for her portrayal of Queen Elizabeth—her second triumph in the same character in the last three years. Claude Rains, Donald Crisp, Alan Hale, Henry Daniell, James Stephenson and Gilbert Roland give still more rugged worth to this famous sea epic—done once before in Milton Sills' story days. "The Sea Hawk" is the other Met offering. This time Chan nabs the killer through the nearest trick of the week.

Boston Ovation For Miller Band

By PEGGY DOYLE

What you of you repeat their of swing or Glenn Miller and his top-ranking orchestra is beside the point. In the face of the stamping, applauding, screaming reception this nationally popular dance orchestra received at yesterday's opening show at the RKO Boston it would appear that swing is in Miller, like the automobile, is here to stay awhile.

From the opening bars of "Tiger Rag" to the final note of "Moonlight Serenade" the theme song. Band leader Miller had the major part of the audience in the palm of his articulate hand. Even Tommy Trent and his puppet show, which might seem on the old-hat side to the more sophisticated parishioners, went over big with the audience.

In fact, with the exception of a few cross-patches in the press section, a Gallup poll would more than likely stack up an overwhelming vote for the boys and the girl—Milton Hutton, equally blonde sister of that sensational jitterbug, Betty Hutton—behind the footlights.

Milton Hutton, chanting "Boogie Woogie" another audience pet, and "Rhumba Jump" to the accompaniment of St. Louis dance music, charmed the evening guests to no end. The professional Betty Brothers, this time with a vocal accompaniment, did some housework stepping to prove their dancing skill beyond a doubt. The penultimate number "Ragtime Rag" was followed by "Moonlight Serenade."

The film attraction is the fast-run "Mogie," with Mische Auer, Tom Brown, Nan Grey and Edgar Kennedy.

Horse Racing Romance Film Tops Paramount, Fenway Bills

Bidding for applause at the Paramount and Fenway are "Sporting Blood," which mixes Dixie foals, romance and race horses, and "Public Deb No. 1," comedy of the society glamour girl who goes Red for a while but finds other interests after she meets the right man.

"Sporting Blood," a Metro picture directed by S. Sylvan Simon, has Robert Young and Maureen O'Sullivan as representatives of the leading families, boiling over all sorts of hurdles and finally falling into each other's arms. But meanwhile the winsome Lynne Carver has had some fun with the young sport. She belongs to the enemy family too but the boy can't keep away from her. So she jilts him with a cruel twist and then, just for spite, he courts and wins the other sister. Romance smooths everything out.

Love here, as in so many Southern stories, takes second place to the racing scenes, which are built up most effectively and give the picture much of its drawing power. Lewis Stone, William Gargan, Clarence Muse and Russell Hicks are among the able players appearing with the three Metro stars.

"Public Deb No. 1" has eye-catching Brenda Joyce as the heiress fond of front page notice and who goes Red for a while but finds other interests after she meets the right man. She is taken in hand. She is being trained by a stable hand, a jockey, and a horse trainer. She is being trained by a stable hand, a jockey, and a horse trainer. She is being trained by a stable hand, a jockey, and a horse trainer.

It's an old comedy, with a most unusual cast. In the movie as up most effectively and give the picture much of its drawing power. Lewis Stone, William Gargan, Clarence Muse and Russell Hicks are among the able players appearing with the three Metro stars.

WITH THE ARRIVAL of clear, blue September days, autumn drag hunts are in full swing . . . The hunts, with pink coated riders cantering over the countryside, putting their horses over rails, hedges and fences in pursuit of baying hounds, are one of society's most picturesque activities . . .

The hunts are held at dawn down in the Myopia country where bankers and their wives and daughters think nothing of rising at 5:30 for an early morning canter over the fields . . . Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., and William Almy, Jr., joint masters of the Quansett Hounds, started off with the field from James Proctor's gate this morning and there will be two hunts a week from now on with meeting places scheduled for Candlewood Farm, Kent's Corner, Farms Road Bridge, and other familiar landmarks in Hamilton and Ipswich . . .

Dedham's huntsmen can have forty winks more than the Myopia riders for their morning canter doesn't begin till 7 . . . Miss Amelia Peabody's farm in Dover was the meeting place before breakfast this morning, and among the expert riders who comprise the field are Miss Sylvia Warren, the Bob Almys, the Lawrence Lombards, George Rice, the James Jacksons and Miss Peabody . . .

Dedham's peaceful early morning quiet will be broken by the shrill blast of the huntsman's whistle every Saturday morning throughout this month . . . with Miss Sylvia Warren providing an extra bit of festivity on the 21st by entertaining the hungry riders at a hunt breakfast . . .

Eleanor Hayward Weds on Sept. 21

MR. AND MRS. FRED P. HAYWARD of Waban and their daughter, Eleanor Hayward, have left the Mountain View House at Whitefield, N. H., where they spent the summer and are in New York for a few days before returning to Waban . . .

Eleanor, who attended Beaver Country Day and Vassar College, is a prominent member of the Junior League, having been director of the League volunteers at the Boston Dispensary . . . On Sept. 21, she will become the bride of J. Wendell McHugh of Schenectady, in a fashionable wedding in Waban . . .

MRS. LAWRENCE COOLIDGE, left, and Mrs. Forrester A. Clark, two pretty blonde young matrons of the North Shore are serving as maîtres d'hôtel at the fashion show and tea at Mrs. B. Preston Cutler's home in Hamilton this afternoon for the benefit of the M. S. P. C.

Wedding

Chapin-Parker Ceremony

From now on Elizabeth Ann Parker will be listed under the C's in the Junior League roster for today she becomes the bride of Melville Chapin, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Barton Chapin of Andover.

Daughter of Miss Allan Douglas Parker of Lowell, the bride attended Mary C. Wheeler School and Smith College and has been active in Junior League affairs.

The wedding is taking place in All Souls' Church, Lowell, with a reception at Homewood, estate of the bride's mother.

Nancy Parker is maid of honor and the eight bridesmaids are Anne Godfrey of Brookline; Anna Bennett, Beach Bluff; Virginia Harris, New York; Hildreth Platt, Lowell; Elizabeth Ann Cook and Alice Parker Scovitt, Kansas City; Katherine Binian, Cohasset, and Muriel Harris, Lowell.

You Can Be Beautiful

Wine-Tone for Fall

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOU'VE tried on some new fall fashions and wondered why you looked like a left-over from summer in them, undoubtedly it's your make-up that's at fault. You can't expect black, or an Indian feathered hat to look anything but incongruous over a lipstick that went with pastel liners.

Wine... a lush, deep-tinged tone is the one for fall. Perhaps you're a bit inhibited when it comes to one of those rich, dark new tints, and wonder if they could possibly be becoming to you. Yes! But only if you have the proper tint of powder as a background.

This glowing new wine-tone which we discovered comes in a complete line-up of accenting aids... lipstick, cream or dry rouge and nail polish (and the nail polish is only 25 cents, imagine that!).

But the color of the powder which will do most for this make-up and for you will vary with your type. A brunette should use a creamy rachel, lighter or darker, as her skin indicates. A blonde will choose a rosier tone of powder, to heighten the glow the lip tint gives.

This wine tint is divine with any blue at all, and new looking and exciting with reddish brown, wine and blue reds, blue greens, black and white.

You can't afford a thin, indefinite type of make-up color, when the fall fashions splash their own gorgeous colors about. They're luxurious, and this wine tint has a luxury of color that complements them exactly.

If you'd like to learn about this new "wine glow" make-up, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4-90, weekdays, except Saturday, or write care of the Boston American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON—

THIS working wife discussion is a "stop it" Just try. Every mail brings a score of arguments why these Gals aren't doing it. It's a blessing of a light. First, then, this.

Dear Miss Robinson: I'm an American girl of a good old-West family... an adequate education. I'm eager, industrious, ambitious for myself and my family. Moreover, I once made a real record. Although I never wished to be a "career woman" I served five years as a private secretary in a large law firm after I graduated from high school.

Yes, I married the man I truly loved and respected, although, by every "practical" estimate, he was a "bad match"—being only a junior salesman in a nation-wide business concern.

And today I'm sitting in a dank and dreary apartment, while my three pasty-faced, malnourished babies play indifferently in a filthy alley outside.

Yet, with one brave effort, I could lift us all out of this. For the firm which once employed me still offers me a position.

BUT my husband won't let me go. HIS pride won't stand it.

So what? Am I a good wife? Or a compete and heartless fool? EDNA MARGARET S. Santa Barbara, Cal.

THAT'S ONE viewpoint. Then here's another:

Dear Elsie Robinson: ANYTIME A WOMAN DEPRIVES HER HUSBAND OF THE DIVINE RIGHT TO GOVERN AND PROVIDE FOR HIS HOUSEHOLD SHE SELLS HIM SHORT.

Having been a registered nurse, I continued my profession after marriage against my husband's objection. I thought he belittled my intelligence by expecting me to be a mere wife and mother, so, as soon as possible, I placed the children in boarding school and continued my career.

But when the youngsters reached high school age, they demanded home life and I reluctantly left my job and became a housewife. No one will know what a sacrifice it meant! Yet, having reached maturity, my children frankly inform me that I fell down on my job as a mother by not staying home and giving them a mother's care—even though I gave them such luxuries—to the money, a car—which they could never have had otherwise.

And I've come at last to agree with them. I believe this world would be infinitely happier if women gave more attention to marriage and less to "careers" outside the home. And my advice to younger women is: NEVER, NEVER SCRAP THE SANCTITY OF A HOME FOR THE GLAMOUR OF A JOB!

Raisin, Date Muffins Just Right for Breakfast

By MARTHA LEE

MUFFINS, of course, are just about tops for breakfast. So why not try these toothsome variations of the muffin motif in which glycerine ensures the left-overs, if any, will stay fresh and not dry out as muffins, alas, are prone to do.

RAISIN MUFFINS

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 2 tsp. sugar
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup, melted shortening
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1 1/2 tsp. glycerine

Sift flour, measure and resift with baking powder, sugar and salt. Combine egg, milk and shortening. Add to flour, beating only enough to dampen all the flour. Rub raisins with glycerine and mix into batter. Pour into well greased hot muffin pans about 2-3 full and bake in a hot oven (425 deg. F.) about 25 minutes, or until done.

DATE MUFFINS

- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 4 tsp. butter
- 2 tsp. glycerine
- 4 tsp. sugar
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup dates, seeded and sliced

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift again. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream together thoroughly. Add egg, then flour, alternately with the milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Rub sliced dates with glycerine and add to muffin mixture. Bake in greased muffin tins in hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 20 minutes.

The addition of glycerine on the dates, keeps them fresh and moist and prevents mold.

PECAN MUFFINS

- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 tsp. melted butter
- 2 tsp. glycerine
- 1 cup pecan nut meats

Cover the nut meats with glycerine. Sift together the flour, salt, sugar and baking powder. Beat egg until light, mix with milk and melted butter. Stir into dry ingredients. Add nut meats, pour into greased muffin tins and bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 20 to 25 minutes.

By coating the nut meats with glycerine they will stay fresh and

In shape when baking and keep their identity. The addition of the glycerine will also keep the muffins fresher.

Opulent New Ensemble

A SUIT ENSEMBLE can meet more needs and occasions than any other single outfit in existence... A nice one will keep its interest a long time. The designer Cymaraire considers this luxuriously blue-tinted collared number to be an extraordinarily good one and we agree. It's called an "occasional" suit. The dyed blue fox-ripple collar is wonderfully flattering. The mossy wood jacket, crepe lined and interlined, has its own dress, richly enriched with softly feminine appliques. An Imported Pup

THAT New York World's Fair in 1940 was something. They had boosted out all the stuffed shirts and the megalomaniacs who had infested the place in 1939 and they had soft-pedaled the high-brow exhibits.

They had put in a lot of good shows and, any night you went out there—or any day, for that matter—you couldn't help having a good time.

Out on the Midway, you met people from Colorado and Uruguay and Idaho and Patagonia. You went in and looked at freaks and with pleasant horror you regarded them and thanked heaven you hadn't been born like that. You drank pink lemonade or beer. You ate fufu, mignon or hot dogs. You looked at the shows and wished you were younger. You came home with a glad heart and sore feet, full of amusement and patriotism. That is the way Cyrus W. Longstreet, the utilities magnate, felt about the Fair until he learned what had happened to him out there, right under his nose. He spoke about it to Elaine, his debutante daughter, as he sat in his bedroom with his feet in a small tub of hot water.

"I'm glad you took me out there, Elainie," he told her. "It makes me remember that I am an American and that I started out as a farm boy. It makes me see that I haven't come as far. In this world as I thought I had and even if I have, it isn't important. I met what really is important all there today and tonight. The people. And it was certainly worth the trip, even if I lose one of those feet of mine. Why, we must have walked 40 miles today. Five, any way. What did you like best out there?"

Elaine was a black-haired girl with a milky white skin, a short turned-up nose, a thick-lipped mouth and a smile, all of which made her a newspaper photographer's delight. She demonstrated what could be done with curves on a stream-lined female body. She had a voice with a come-hither note in it. She looked up at the ceiling and proceeded to lie in a charming feminine manner.

"I don't know," she said thoughtfully. "Maybe it was the Aquascade and General Motors. It was all wonderful."

THE BEST EXHIBIT

And only that last sentence held any truth, at all. Because what she liked best was a young man. He was a barker and he was barking a girl show just off the midway. He was slight and pug-nosed. He had a charming smile and a husky, raucous voice with a spark of electricity in it. He waved a little cane, pointing at individuals among the crowd as she stressed a point.

"Here you are, Ladies and Gentlemen," he said conversationally. "Here is a galaxy of beauty the like of which has not been seen since Cleopatra barged up the Nile to meet Caesar. You, Sir," he pointed to an old man who had forgotten he had passed seventy. "Look as though you were about to enter your fifties. Step in here and look the ladies over. If you don't admit that these twenty heat any similar number of girls you have met in all your life for beauty, grace and charm, we will gladly return your two-bit, a quarter, five lonesome nickels. Step up, Ladies and Gentlemen, and see the lovely women!"

He was Johnny Stewart, the fifth Johnny Stewart in a dynasty of barkers that had run Europe and America pointing out beauties, monstrilous, pias and needies. He was the cream of a family of pitchmen. He could make his pitch in an alley and change it into a populated avenue. He could charm the silver out of a man's pocket or a folded dollar-bill from a lady's stocking. It was, John Stewart, his father and owner of the girl show, admitted, good.

John Stewart looked like Johnny would in about 40 years. He was in his sixties, jowled and pugnacious. His eyes were weary but still alert. He had seen everything but he lived in the unconscious hope that he would see something else new before he died. What he saw when Elaine brought her father to a halt before Johnny's pitch was not new but something always refreshing, a beautiful young girl. He happened to be watching and saw it all. What? Why nature, of course. Nature doing her eternal stuff.

Elaine and her father stood looking toward the show. Her father looked at the line of girls with appreciation in his eyes. But Elaine looked at Johnny. She did what the theatrical profession calls a "take." She looked casually at Johnny, then up at the girls, then back at Johnny. Once more she did it and then her gaze fastened on Johnny. For her, he was the show.

Johnny felt it. He turned his eyes and saw her. The impact was hard. He sort of faltered in his spiel. And when he resumed it, he sounded like a kid reciting "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck," as though it was something he had learned by heart and didn't care a lot about.

"HELLO, SISTER"

Elaine told her father to buy two tickets and while he walked to the ticket window, she assayed close to Johnny. Her eyes were bright and excited and Johnny's hot fire from hers.

"Hello," she said to Johnny, like a strange kid talking to another.

had brought Cyrus up to believe that you had to have money before you acquired an identity. Up until her death, Mrs. Longstreet had been one of the most determined social climbers in the U. S.

"I don't know," she admitted "but I think so. I'll investigate and let you know."

She investigated, all right, but she didn't tell her father. She was at the Fair next day and she stayed there till closing time. She came back the day after that. She had lunch and dinner with Johnny. They danced at Orpheum.

On the fourth day, Johnny said, "You're my girl. I knew it as soon as I saw you. How about getting hitched?" "I know I am," Elaine told him. "All right."

So they got their licenses at City Hall and they got married and the two of them rode up to Park Avenue and told Cyrus about it. And Cyrus turned red, dark red little distance away. "How much," he asked bluntly, "would it be worth to you and your son to have him allow my daughter to get a divorce?"

"Quite a little money, I think," John told him. "Why? What's the matter with your daughter?"

Cyrus began to choke with rage and John patted him on the back. "I'll give him a hundred thousand dollars!" Cyrus said when he could talk.

"Look, old timer," John said softly. "I know what's the matter with you. Johnny told me. You think you're somebody. You started out as a hick and you had a little luck. I bet you don't know who your great-grandfather was. That's the difference between you and me and Johnny. We know. We're aristocrats, we are. We've been shilling 'em in for a hundred and fifty years. We're the Stewarts, the banking Stewarts."

"We were wise guys when your ancestors were wet-suiting cows. Now, you make another crack about getting a divorce for your daughter and I'll put on a one-man

Johnny turned his eyes and saw Elaine.

"Hello, Sister," Johnny answered and smiled.

And it was all over. The magazine had drawn the nail, the man the woman. John Stewart knew it in a minute. He had seen it happen a thousand times before. He understood when Elaine lagged behind her father, looking back at Johnny. He understood when Johnny handed him his cane and said, "Take over, Pop." He watched him walk into the show. He could practically see Johnny as he walked in behind Cyrus and Elaine and ranged into the seat beside her.

"Johnny Stewart is the name," he said out of the side of his mouth.

"Hello, Johnny," Elaine said in a tone of delightful surprise and gave him her hand. "Daddy, this is Johnny Stewart."

Cyrus dragged his eyes off a slim blonde and glared at Johnny. He took his hand and grunted. He tried to look back at the blonde, but suspicion stayed his eyes. He watched Johnny.

Johnny didn't mind. He was talking to Elaine and drinking her in. Elaine liked it. They talked all through the show. Elaine told him she would be back next day. That evening as they started home, her father said:

"Who is this Johnny Stewart? Is he anybody?"

Elaine knew that her mother and sat down suddenly. He choked and sputtered. Elaine brought him a glass of water which he dashed from her hand. Johnny said,

"Your father seems a little upset."

"I won't have it!" Cyrus belated, "A barker in a rarnival. I'll have this marriage annulled. You took advantage of my daughter."

"Mister," Johnny told him, "no body can take advantage of your daughter. If she was that kind of a girl I wouldn't marry her. When you get over this, come out and see us some time. We're living in Flatbush."

CYRUS' PLOT

Their departure started a bad day for Cyrus. A hard week. He had been used to having everything his own way all his life and he didn't appreciate having a son-in-law who was a barker. He wondered what his dear, dead Eleanor would say. Right now, she probably was raising a cloud of dust as she turned in her grave. He was angry and then he got cunning. He went out to the girl show and looked around. Johnny spotted him and greeted him with a smile. He said:

"Hello, Mr. Longstreet. I want you to meet my father." He introduced John Stewart to him and Cyrus said, "I'd like to talk to you a moment." He moved John a

"Hey Rubie" and knock h— out of you."

Cyrus swung—and missed. John jabbed and connected. Cyrus fell down. Johnny and Elaine helped him up. Cyrus glared at all of them. And then he began to grin.

"Maybe you got something, Mr. Stewart," he admitted, "Maybe you are an aristocrat. But you're wrong about me not knowing who my great-grandfather was. He was Amos Longstreet and he did a little time for horse stealing a little while after the Battle of New Orleans. Johnny, shake hands. I'm glad to welcome you as a son-in-law."

THE END.

Barrymore
Wails He's A Jackass

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—John the Profile Barrymore, who once richly deserved the title of America's No. 1 critic of beautiful women and love, found a role today that comes only with age and experience and age.

John Barrymore has turned philosopher. And the reporters that heard his story didn't smile this time.

Many of those who have written smartingly of John's drinking madcap scrapes and recent marital tangles with his third wife Elaine felt a bit guilty. For out it all John Barrymore has become humble and wise.

RACE HORSE METAPHOR

The one-time stage and screen's greatest lover said he was a jackass. He also said he was just an old race horse—Seabiscuit perhaps—but observed that Seabiscuit had been retired and that he still was being sent to the post for more needed purses.

Emerging from a thundering haze with the aid of weak beer, John declared: "I'm just an old Seabiscuit owned by a couple of women. Yeah, Elaine and her mama."

He related to his wife, Elaine Barrie, and her mother, Mrs. Edna Jacobs, with whom he has rowed and separated repeatedly during the last few years.

"They trained me, and sent me out to win my race," John continued grimly. "And they collected my winnings. They groomed me and curried me; yes, they even fed me lumps of sugar and saw that I got my oats—but not too many white ones!

"But a man, in the final analysis, has to live with himself, sleep with himself, no matter how many women have been in his life."

JOHN TURNS HUMBLE

"In the last moment before he steals off into dreamland, he ought not to feel like a jackass. That, alas, is my fate."

"I knew damn well I was a jackass, but I couldn't bray in my own front yard. If I hadn't considered respectable. So now I am a runaway jackass."

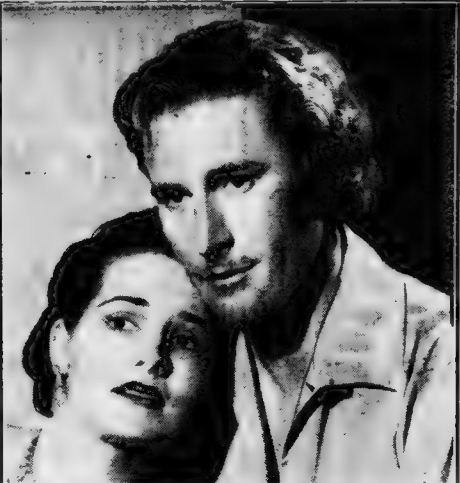

"That's why I went down to Grauman's Chinese Theater, where the film stars for years have been putting their footprints."

"I ordered up some nice fresh cement, nice and soft, and then I pushed my face into it."

"Thus this damned unworthy and far from handsome profile of mine shall at last receive its just deserts and be trampled under foot."

Those who had come to learn some spicy bit about the latest separation of John and Elaine somehow felt this wasn't important anymore.

For John the Great Barrymore, who many a woman once had loved, had turned humble philosopher. He earned back their respect—and perhaps his own.

CAN YOU GUESS?—Are you able to identify above film player from following clues? 1.—Born in Philippine Islands. 2.—Real name is Ardis Ankersson. 3. Appeared in Federal Theater's production of "On The Rocks." 4. Won two screen tests. 5. First picture was "Espionage Agents."

This is Last Day for Clues
In 'The Sea Hawk' Contest

Today is the last day of clues which will reveal the identity of one of the players shown in the above photograph, a scene from Warner Brothers' $2,000,000 historical drama and exciting story of sea warfare in the days of Elizabeth, "The Sea Hawk," which opened a week's engagement at the Metropolitan Theater, yesterday.

Hidden in the above five clues is the name of one of the stars in "The Sea Hawk."

Who is it?

Send your four solutions before midnight to: The Sea Hawk Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston, Mass.

Include a letter of 50 words or less on: "Why I consider Errol Flynn the greatest portrayal of Adventure and Romantic characters on the screen."

Letters will be used in cases of ties. Originality and accuracy will determine winners.

As exciting as the screen-fare at the Metropolitan Theater are the valuable and useful prizes offered by the Boston American to winners.

A new RCA personal radio is shown and offered at the Keenan Radio Co., 58 State st., Boston. Manager Harry Canter will present this new radio sensation with the autographs of Errol Flynn and Brenda Marshall, stars of "The Sea Hawk."

The new radio is much like a camera in appearance and plays anywhere, operating on a flashlight battery. Other awards are five Shaffer pen and pencil sets from New England's outstanding Pen House, the Melnick Bros., 5 Bromfield st.; 50 guest Metropolitan tan Theater tickets; and 50 Brenda Marshall Candy Kisses, in individual cellophane containers, of more than 80 candy "kisses."

Today's set of clues is the last in the series.

U. S. Food-Costs
Show Decrease

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (AP) — Housewives got more groceries for their dollar in mid-August than at any time since April, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

The decline was general throughout the large cities of the country and included nearly all important foodstuffs except beef, pork, fish, butter and eggs. At mid-August, the bureau's index showed retail food prices were 96.2 per cent of the 1935-39 average, or 1.2 per cent lower than in July.

BILL GRIMES SAYS:

Loafer Would Ruin Sox Cut of Series Money

On their last visit to the Hub, the New York Yankees looked and played like a "sugar bush" aggregation . . . They were so far below par that the Red Sox took four of the five games.

BILL GRIMES

At that time, the Yankees were struggling to get a foot-hold in the first division.

The Yankees are winding up a three-game series today in Washington. They'll be at Fenway Park tomorrow and Sunday, playing single games against the Red Sox.

If they tip over the Senators again today, the Yankees cannot be worse than two games out of first place (regardless of what the Indians do in Detroit) when they hit town tomorrow morning.

The Red Sox-Yankees series will draw two capacity gatherings to Fenway Park. The advance sale is very heavy and the supply of reserved seats will be practically exhausted before night-fall, according to Miss Mary Cadogan.

Due to the three verdicts they took from the Athletics, the Red Sox are still contesting. But if they are going to remain in the race they must get a better brand of pitching than was dished up during the series with the Mackmen.

Any club that loses a six-run lead in one inning isn't playing championship ball. Against a last place club like the Athletics, Jim Bagby should have been able to coast home an easy winner after the Red Sox had presented him with a six-run lead in the 2d inning. But, instead, "Junior" was in the showers before the Red Sox had even threatened to retire a Mackman in the 3d round.

And, he didn't have sufficient time to thoroughly soap himself before Emerson Dickman, who took over when Bagby was unable to get anyone out, was asking him to move over so that he could take a sponge bath.

It's a breeze to come back and win over the Athletics after blowing a six-run lead but it's a tough assignment for any club to pull off such a stunt against the Yankees.

If the Red Sox are going to get a cut of the World Series money, every man on the roster must bear down from here in. One loafer will cost them a barrel of dough.

Ted Bishop, Woodland, is the Bay Stater to watch next week at Winged Foot, during the National Amateur championship . . . Ted acquired an abundance of confidence while winning the Massachusetts simon pure title at the Salem Country Club . . . Bishop is a fine medal player and therefore shouldn't have much trouble qualifying for match play and if he disregards his opponents and plays against par, he'll go places at Winged Foot.

Although she came East to spend the rest of the season with Ole Case, I wouldn't be surprised if Mrs. Casey Stengel is on her way back to Los Angeles . . . For the Bees blew both ends of a twin bill yesterday to the Giants . . . The double defeat was tough to take, particularly after the recent success of the Bees . . . Bama Rowell's batting average did a nose dive yesterday when he failed to connect with a hit in nine trips to the bat.

According to Fr. George Dowd, the 1941 C. Y. O. championship will be decided over the medal and match play route . . . Within five years, the C. Y. O. golf championship will be a national event . . . There isn't a player in either the American or National Leagues who can compare with Joe Cronin as a "clutch" hitter . . . The Yankees are now only two games behind the Cleveland Indians and after that unequalled for statement which Owner Alva Bradley is alleged to have made, Manager Ossie Vitt must be laughing up his sleeve . . . If, as Bradley stated, Vitt is through as manager after this season, win, lose or draw, Ossie can well afford to blow his cut of the World Series dough and charge off the loss to entertainers . . . Meaning the laughs he'd get over the Indians meaning low over their respective losses.

The Crosscup-Pishon Post will cash in on the All-Stars victory over the Giants in New York . . . On Tuesday night, Coach "Swede" Nelson will send his Eastern All-Stars against the Bay State's Washington Redskins at Fenway Park . . . After a thrilling contest, the Redskins set back the All-Stars a year ago, 30 to 27 . . . By piloting his All-Star aggregation to a 16 to 7 victory over the New York Giants, Coach Tuss McLaughry eased the old buck right into Swede Nelson's lap . . . But, "Swede" is a smart football coach and having been at the Polo Grounds Wednesday night, he'll use the same offense that clicked against the Giants . . . With a few exceptions, the Eastern All-Star squad is the same that took the Giants into camp . . . The Eastern All-Stars will report to Coach Nelson today . . . The squad will hold two workouts daily through Monday . . . There'll be a quartet of ex-Eagles on the All-Stars, ex-Captain Ernie Schwotzer, Vito Ananis, Pete Cignetti and Dick Harrison . . . Holy Cross will be represented by Ronnie Cahill, who starred in the Polo Grounds, St. Titus and Bill Collins . . . Tom Nash and Spencer Manrod will be carrying on as they did for dear old Brown . . . John Spirida, formerly of St. Anselm's, will be the only New England collegian in the Redskins lineup, for Ray Flaherty will have most of his old stars in action, namely Sam Baugh, Turk Edwards, Ed Justice, Charlie Malone, Wayne Millner and Ernie Pinckert.

CONN 174, PASTOR 180 FOR N. Y. GARDEN FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (INS) The long discussed and once postponed 15-round battle between Light Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn and Heavyweight Bob Pastor is scheduled for presentation tonight before a crowd of some 15,000, with the vast majority of the witnesses lined up behind Conn at odds of 8 to 5.

The fight is attractive enough just as it stands, but, as a drawing card, has the added advantage of being an elimination leading to an opponent for Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis this fall or next summer.

WANTS DECISIVE WIN

"All I want is a decisive win by either of them, and I've got an opponent for Louis in a title defense," promoter Mike Jacobs said today with an undisguised note of optimism.

He, in keeping with minority opinion, supposes Conn is big enough to fight Louis if the panging Pittsburgher can get past point. The local heavyweight has just about worn out his welcome with Louis in two previous meetings and probably couldn't get another title challenge even if he should tell Conn out.

After all, Conn is only a light heavyweight who will be making only his third start against heavyweights tonight.

Tonight's engagement is sufficiently appealing to lure Louis himself here from the midwest to set in on the festivities, and it may actually turn out to be a ring classic before it is over.

(Immediately after the Conn-Pastor fight tonight the Daily Record will be on sale with a Fight Extra Edition. Read about the fight FIRST in the Daily Record.)

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—Bob Pastor sealed 190's, and Billy Conn 174 as they weighed in today for their 15-round heavyweight boxing bout tonight at Madison Sq. Garden.

Pastor, although it may not be as simple as that.

A Pastor victor would be quite shocking from a promotional standpoint.

Heroes and Goats

By International News Service. HEROES—Ernie Benham, Yankees, a rookie pitcher who won his fourth consecutive victory yesterday; Hal Schumacher, Giants, who pitched a three-hitter; Rudy York, Tigers, whose 25th homer drove in the winning runs as Detroit defeated Cleveland.

GOATS—Sam Schulte, Phillies, whose wild heave allowed the Dodgers to score the winning run in the tenth; Al Smith, Indians, who failed to protect an early lead against the Tigers.

The whole first division in the American League could be covered by a handkerchief today.

The staggering Cleveland Indians are only two games in front of both the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers, while the almost forgotten Boston Red Sox are a mere four, and one-half game away.

The Tigers trounced two Indians, 11-3 again yesterday, but the crashing Yankees took a double-header from Washington, 2-1 and 8-1, to move into second place by 386 to 365. The Red Sox outdug the A's, to win in typical fashion, 9-7.

The National League champion Reds continued eight games in front of Brooklyn in their so-called, as both won.

Hose Back in Fight After Crushing A's

42 EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1940

The fans who planned to spend this off day attending Boston College football practice or watching the horses run at Narragansett are sticking close to the radio waiting for the results of ball games between the Yanks and Senators at Washington and the Indians and Tigers at Detroit.

Either that, or they're out hunting madly for tickets for the Red Sox-Yankee games at the Fens tomorrow and Sunday.

No, they're not daffy. But the American League pennant race is. The Red Sox, after dropping out of contention time and again, and being definitely read out of the pennant party as late as last Monday, find themselves only 4½ games below the roof this morning as a result of taking three in a row from the Athletics while the Tigers were knocking off the Indians twice in the past two afternoons.

ROSE NEAR PEAK

Let the Rose take two from the Yanks over the week-end and they may be within two games of the roof when they start West on Sunday night.

It sounds fantastic, but here are the latest figures:

	W	L	PG	GB	GTP
Cleveland	73	54	541	—	25
New York	73	56	566	2	25
Detroit	74	57	563	2	23
BOSTON	72	60	545	4½	22

The Croninmen were at their Ezzy best as they swept a three-game series with the Philadelphia Athletics by winning 9 to 7 at the Fens yesterday, while the Tigers were knocking off the Indians for the second successive time.

They blew a six-run lead in this contest, but they've become so accustomed to having a couple of pitchers fold up every afternoon that apparently it doesn't bother them any more. Certainly it didn't on this occasion.

They came on again to hand one Bill Beckman his first defeat in seven starts, with Boss Joe Cronin, as usual, furnishing the sticking spark and Earl "Lefty" Johnson succeeding brilliantly on the same hill where Jim Bagby and Emerson Dickman had failed miserably.

Here, in brief, is the way the battle progressed.

Our heroes put over six runs against George Caster in the second inning.

DOUBLE PLAY BALL

The Macks came right back in the third to count seven times against Bagby and Dickman before Johnson came in to end the nightmare by throwing a double play ball with the bases loaded.

The Coast child didn't allow a Mack to set foot on third base. In fact, he didn't give a hit until the eighth inning. By that time, his mates had manufactured a second lead to give him his fifth win.

Or Capt. Courageous Cronin doubled in the fifth. A triple by Bobby Doerr and single by Charlie Gelbert followed. There were two runs.

But the Skipper was taking no unnecessary chances. He rapped out his third double of the day in the seventh and was rescued by a Lou Finney single.

Throw out the pitching (?) by Bagby and Dickman and these Sox, who should have been wrecked by horrible pitching months ago, batted and fielded like the greatest club in the majors. And that's what they must be to be only 4½ games below the roof without a hurler who has won more than ten games at this writing.

They all hit. They played errorless ball. With one reliable hurler they'd still grab off the bunting. Without chance.

And they'll have better than that if, after a vacation today, they can knock off the Yankees in single games tomorrow and Sunday at the Jersey at orchard.

That pitcher they've got an outside

BEES BID FAREWELL TO PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—Taking a well earned rest today, the Bees swung back into action against the Phillies here tomorrow in their last visit of the season to this town.

The visitors, although in seventh place, have been playing the best brand of ball in the major leagues during the past three weeks and figure to give the Prothro outfit plenty of trouble.

Yesterday the Bees bid fare all to the Polo Grounds in twin bill against the Giants.

TOBIN KAYOED

The fact that the Bees were set back twice by the Terryman should make them all the tougher tomorrow. After losing the opener in the ninth, 8 to 7, the Bees blew the nightcap, 4 to 1.

The opening game was just one of those things. The Giants batted Jim Tobin from the hill in the fourth but Nick Strincevich took command and pitched great ball until the ninth.

Coming from behind, the Bees picked up five runs and were out front 7 to 4 coming into the last half of the ninth.

BEES' HURLERS PARADE

When the first two Giants hit safely, Stengel rushed Lefty Sullivan into the game. Sullivan was quickly followed by Coffman and Piechotta but there was no stopping the Giants who came up with four runs to clinch the verdict.

The nightcap was quite a mound duel until the last of the eighth. The Bees had picked up a run in the third on Sisti's double and Cooney's single.

YOUNG CLOUTS HOMER

Salvo made a bad pitch in the fourth and Young dropped it into the stands to deadlock the game. Outside of this homer and Rucker's single in the opening frame, Salvo held the Giants hitless until the eighth.

But he was more than matched by Prince Hal Schumacher who yielded just three safe blows over the nine innings.

In the last of the eighth, the Giants pushed three runs across to make it a perfect day and bring a seven game losing streak to a decided close.

Amateurs Fight In Radio Bowl

New England Champion, Jimmy Mulligan, Lowell, will head an imposing list of amateur fighters who will compete in the 101st Infantry Post battles tonight under the floodlights at Radio Bowl, Medford. Teams from Lawrence, Haverhill and Newport, R. I., promise to provide plenty of action in all five classes to be competed—the 115, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pound divisions.

Mulligan, in the 147-pound class, will stack up against some keen competition, especially from Mike Coccozza, Haverhill, first coxza mixes his boxing ability with a confusing, comical style that hands the fans a lot of laughs.

In the 126½ lb. North End, tops the list in the 126½ while George Turner, Newport, appears to be the class in the 115's. Turner was runner up to the R. I. state title in this division in 1938.

Sports Review

Billy Conn 8 to 5 betting favorite over Bob Pastor in tonight's bout. Casey Stengel says his Boston Bees would finish in first division if they could play the season over again.

Johnny Vandermeer's successful comeback campaign is baseball's big news today.

Ted Schroeder continues to enhance Bill Tilden's reputation as a talent scout in national tennis championships at Forest Hills.

If our White Label Malt Beer is not the best beer you've ever tasted—it's pretty near it. For we brew it differently from other beers. We use choice imported hops, and fancy Malt—but no other grain! Only Malt Beers are brewed that way, and it costs us more to follow that formula.

There's only one fair way to judge—Taste and Compare!

This beer is made solely from hops and barley-malt and no other grain and is therefore a "malt" beer. This is the way fine imported beers are brewed; it is the distinction which, in popular opinion, sets Trommer's apart as a more palatable and thoroughly satisfying brew.

REVERE COACH ON LIMB FOR TEAM

By SAM BROGNA

Even the beachcombers along the Revere beach boulevard are talking about the coming football team of Revere High school and the new stadium which is near completion. Never in the past has there been so much pre-season enthusiasm and good spirit shown not only among the football squad which numbered close to a 100 last week but also among the residents.

For the first time in five years, Revere High gridmen will perform before the home folk. This is being made possible by the new stadium, the first in the annals of Revere. And it just so happens that along with the new field which will be called the Paul Revere Stadium, a potential championship team will go along in the bargain.

TWO DAYS PREPARATION
Coach George Kenneally, former coach of the Boston Shamrocks professional football team, who is starting his second year at the Revere team helm, is quite confident that he has "Something" in the making this year.

"Nothing like last year," the youthful coach chirped. "This looks like a grand season. We had two strikes against us last fall when I was appointed two days before the regular season started."

"We had no time to prepare for the Melrose game and lost that as well as most of the others. I had to give the boys about three new plays between each game and it took until late in the season before they started to click. This was shown by the tie we gained with Wintthrop Thanksgiving morning; Wintthrop was our objective game."

PLENTY OF TIME THIS YEAR
The optimistic mentor continued with little hesitation:

"We have 10 weeks of spring practice behind us which makes plenty of difference between a winner and a loser."

Upon the broad shoulders of John Morelli, regular fullback last year, lie the destinies of Revere High. As Morelli goes, so goes the rest of the team.

Kenneally is building around the 180-pound, fast-stepping triple threat, who was the lone regular to return this year. But the rest of the team, which is just about ready for the opening clash with Melrose Sept. 21, is made up of lettermen who played in practically every game last year.

MORELLI ONE OF BEST

According to Coach Kenneally, Morelli should be about the best back in Greater Boston this fall.

In the quarterback position, George is working Dando DiPasquale, with Bill Dawson and Pete Sarno on the halfback berths.

His line, which is one of the heaviest around, is made up of Andy Moradian and Pat Parsons, ends; Carl Indrisano and Bart Barluff, tackles; Al Stewart and Joe Indrisano, guards; and Bill Enos, center.

It is undecided just where the opening game with Melrose will be played, because the new playhouse is not expected to be completed for at least three weeks more.

TODAY A YEAR AGO: Jersey City clinched first International League pennant in 36 years.

THREE YEARS AGO: Gold cup won by Herber Mendelsohn's Notre Dame, driven by Clet Perry; took two firsts and a second in three heats.

FIVE YEARS AGO: Hal Schumacher scored 16th victory over Chelmsford in four years, 7-5, as Giants kept pace with Cards and Cubs in hot National League race.

Huskies' Coach Shifts MacFarland to Tailback

Northeastern added a third sophomore triple threat to its backfield yesterday when Ed MacFarland of Wintthrop was shifted from end to tailback by Coach Jimmy Dunn. Because of the abundance of end material, headed by veteran Ernie Colantonio of Newton, the shift was made possible.

MacFarland is definitely slated for a regular post some place, and Dunn thinks that the former Wintthrop tackle, along behind the line, Jimmy has a number of reasons for his conclusions.

First of all, Mac is the fastest man on the squad. His freshman track record is proof. Last year MacFarland and Don MacKinnon of Harvard were the outstanding freshmen timber toppers in New England.

Second reason for the shift is MacFarland's kicking ability. At Wintthrop, Mac used to drop back from tackle to do the punting.

Third reason is his passing. He throws a foster with great accuracy, and his showing in practice sessions has been excellent. Then of course his graceful-

Riggs Best Money Player, Says McNeill

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—Don McNeill is acting like the champion he hopes he'll be, and that's why you feel sorry for him.

The thought of being recognized as America's best tennis player fills him with a great awe and a grave sense of responsibility. He hopes he can win the title next Monday, when the finals of the 59th annual national singles championships are played. If he does, he wants no post interviews to creep up and haunt him.

So he's more reticent than ever. But when asked about Bobby Riggs, he said:

"I think Bobby's game is absolutely at its peak right now. He's the greatest money player in the game. I don't know why, but I don't seem to be going my best."

Don plays Elwood Cooke today. If he wins, he'll meet the victor of the Frank Parker-Jack Kramer match. Nothing easy there. Riggs to get the finals, must beat the youthful Ted Schroeder and then take on the winner of the Frank Kovacs-Joe Hunt set. Nothing easy there, either.

But while the paths of the men are strewn with thorns, Alice Marble's continues to be sprinkled with roses. Thanks to Mary Hardwick, the English Wightman Cup ace, Alice won't have to worry about Sarah Palfrey, the pretty New Yorker, any more.

In yesterday's major upset, Miss Hardwick won in straight sets—just after the betting boys were beginning to wonder whether Alice's reign might not end, after all.

That leaves Pauline Betz of Los Angeles as the most serious threat. And you can make something of the fact, if you want to, that in a practice session yesterday she and Alice split even in sets—and quit when the games got to 5-all in the third set!

ness and elusiveness add to his effectiveness as a runner.

With MacFarland in the backfield, Dunn can be reasonably certain of having a kicker, passer, and runner available at all times. Both Joe Dias of New Bedford and Jim Shea of Brighton are nifties in those departments, and Mac will be real insurance against their being injured.

The end squad remains in good shape, for Dunn still has Bonale MacKinnon of Stoneham, Onni Wactenen of Walspole, Jim Reilly of Brighton, and the currently-absent Charlie Knowles of Roxbury to supplement Colantonio.

The initial practice of the Boston College freshman football squad will be held next Monday under the direction of Tom Powers, newly appointed yearling coach.

The new coach of the Eagles, whose appointment was announced by Graduate Manager of Athletics John P. Curley, is a Dorchester resident and a graduate with the class of 1940. He was a member of the varsity squad for three years.

PLAYED FOR ENGLISH

Powers first gained athletic recognition at English high school, from which he graduated in 1936. At English the chunky Dorchester boy was a star hurdler and a varsity back for three years.

In his freshman year at Boston College, Powers played halfback and saw a great deal of action, but when he reached the varsity the following year he found trouble gaining recognition with the power-minded then mentor Gilmour Lobbie. His junior year with the squad saw him achieving no greater success.

Last fall under Head Coach Frank Leahy the ever-trying Powers was shifted to quarterback and in this position saw more action than he had during his previous two years. Though he was fourth-string signal caller, Tom came in handy on more than one occasion. At Detroit, where the Eagles were having a frightful time trying to tip an aroused Titan eleven, Powers was rushed into the fray late in the first half to call a particular pet play of mentor Leahy's. The move had much to do with winning the bowl game.

Though he probably hasn't the actual game experience of many college backs Powers, a keen student of the game, should make an ideal coach.

101 Race Fans Cash In on $177 Double

By TOM SHEHAN

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 7.—Two photo finishes were required to decide the winners of the daily double, Mrs. B. Ryan's Richestan getting the verdict in the opening number and the second event, a six-furlong claiming event for $1600 platers, going to Leon T. Whitehill's Pompa.

To those who combined the two, the daily double returned $177.30, 101 tickets being sold on the combination.

Pompa just failed to get the verdict over C. E. Simmons' Ball O Fire in the second event. The Sweeping Away gelding was clocked in 1:24 and paid $11 to those who supported him as he won a nose verdict.

Ball O Fire, three-quarters of a length in advance of Harry Neusteter's Meadow Morn, paid $5.50 to place. Meadow Morn, a full-length clear of Hanna Brothers Ugin, returned the good price of $24.10 to show.

Pompa was in front at the eighth pole, but had to come again after Ball O Fire got in front temporarily going by the 16th pole.

While Don Christmas' Brighton Up, Dixiana's Study Period and Oscar L. Foster's Ina Dell K. fought it out in close order along the rail through the stretch, Mrs. B. Ryan's Richestan came out of the clouds on the opening event, a six-furlong claiming event for maiden two-year-olds.

The bay daughter of Aethelstan 2nd was under pressure right to the wire over the dull racing strip to complete the distance in 1:14. An outsider in the wagering, Richestan was ridden by Henri Mora and paid $16.90 in the mutuel.

Behind the winner Brighton Up took down second money, three-quarters of a length in advance of Study Period, which raced in close quarters along the rail through the stretch. Brighton Up returned $2.10 to place, while Study Period, which finished with half a length of clearance in front of Ina Dell K., paid $5.10 to show.

Harry Kroitz had Ina Dell K. under punishment to take the lead out of the gate, while Study Period was in close attendance going into the far turn. At this point Palo, racing in W. L. Brann's silks, stumbled while in the contention and was pulled back to last place by Charley Corbett to allow him to recover his stride.

STAGE REVEALS SECRET OF TEAM'S WINNING SURGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (INS)—If Wall Street's master minds are looking for somebody to show them how to run a shoestring into a million in a hurry, they should lost no time contacting Casey Stengel, shrewd, witty and articulate manager of the Boston Bees.

Casey is leading today what everybody admits is the strongest seventh-place club the majors ever saw and one, says Casey, that would be a cinch to finish in the first division if it had the season to play over again.

His rivals would like to know what magical formula he uses in converting a $2 bushel into a $50,000 major league star almost overnight and changing a chronic tailender into a prospective pennant winner.

GIVES QUINN CREDIT

Casey himself disclaims any magic or even the use of mirrors. "It's all very simple," he explains in his humorous drawl. "My boss, Bob Quinn, gets a pick and shovel, goes scouting around the deepest bushes until he finds a likely looking nugget and brings it to me to polish up. You'd be surprised how often Bob comes up with a real diamond that way."

"Take my club today, for instance. Four of my stars come from so far in the bush country you couldn't find their homes on a Rand McNally map. They never saw a Class A horse or even a Class B before I got them but they're doing a little better than all right at that."

"How do I develop them? Well, that's simple too. I was surprised how little difference there is sometimes between an ordinary player and a great one. Take Carvel Rowell, my second baseman, for instance. Everybody gave me the horse laugh when I switched him from the outfield to the infield. They told me he'd been tried once as an infielder in the sticks and had set what still stands even there as a record for errors."

"Well, I saw he was a real hitter and that he could make a double play with that snap underhand throw to first like Rajah Hornsby used to make. Then if he had so much to start with, why wasn't he making good?"

FOUND ROWELL'S FAULT

"I soon discovered that he was fighting the ball; that he was letting grounders hit him on the heel of the hand instead of letting it slip into the palm. Once he got the hang of fielding grounders and after he learned two or three other little points I had a star. Simple, isn't it?"

Smart baseball men say it isn't half so simple as Casey makes it appear and they attribute his success to his uncanny judgment of a ball player in the rough and his wonderful ability as a teacher. At the moment he is making a good first baseman out of Max West and is completing the successful metamorphosis of Second Basemen Sebastian Sisti to a third baseman. Casey is a marvel at developing young pitchers as witness his success with Nick Strincevich, Al Javery, Dick Erricksen and Joe Sullivan. One of his greatest jobs was converting Manuel Salvo into a winner after Bill Terry had given up on him.

"That was a good deal for me," chuckles Casey. "Salvo has the stuff. All he needed was to be let alone to pitch his own game and he shown one or two little things. I'll bet Terry would like to have him back again."

Casey has the youngest infield in the majors, and all he needs, he says, is a couple more outfielders and a catcher who can hit.

Umpire Misses First Game In 16 Years

CHICAGO, Sept. 6 (AP)—There's still a touch of neuritis on his "strike" arm, but Umpire Bill McGowan is in there calling them again after missing his first game in 16 years of American League umpiring.

McGowan returned to duty last night for the St. Louis Brown-Chicago White Sox game after being forced out with an attack of neuritis Tuesday. Until then he had served in 2532 straight games, he said. Lou Gehrig, baseball's iron man, took himself out of the lineup after 2130 consecutive games.

However, McGowan still was far short of the mark established by another American League umpire, George Hildebrand, who McGowan said retired after never having missed a game in 21 years.

McGowan, who is 43, began umpiring at 19 and has been at it ever since.

ROOM AND BOARD By Eugene Ahern

Panthers Plan Aerial Attack

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6 (AP)—Only four days before Pittsburgh's simon-pure Panthers begin their 1940 football practice, the campus is all agog over what's coming out of the grab-bag this fall.

Like the little girl, with the little eul, the second edition of the P. S. (post-Sutherland) Panther machine can be good—or the. No one seems to know what to expect.

For one thing, Charlie Bowser has lost 15 lettermen who helped him to a better-than-expected season in 1939, winning five of nine. Gone, too, are the stalwart carry-overs from Jock Sutherland's regime—elusive Dick Cassiano and the veteran Ben Kisch.

On the other hand, the prospects are for a fair first-tying eleven and the usual supply of material. In addition, Pitt (believe it or not) will pull an air attack out of its sleeve this fall—an air attack, mind you, by the machine which, not so long ago, was just one powerhouse after another, year after year.

Under Pitt's new amateur bluish the rules forbid practice before Sept. 10, which gives Bowser only two weeks to get ready for a back-breaking eight-game schedule that opens with Ohio State's Big Buckeyes.

Yet, if all you hear is true, Pitt's first-string team doesn't look too bad, despite an early towel-waving spree by Coach Bowser.

"We have many replacements to make," Bowser points out thoughtfully, "and the spring drills were unsatisfactory because of bad weather. We have problems at quarter, fullback and tackle, and we can't tell much about the way things will go."

INDIANS STRIKE FOR PAY

SALISBURY, Md., Sept. 6 (AP)

—It was wampum or warpath for "Poppa Joe" Cambria's Salisbury Indians today. The short, robust ex-laundryman from Baltimore, who comprises the Washington Senators' one-man scouting staff, found himself with a baseball bat on his hands—a players' strike.

WANT BACK PAY

Edward Hines, Indian catcher and spokesman for the team, said the issue was overdue salaries.

"We'll get our back pay before we go on the field again," Hines asserted.

The situation came to a head last night, when only two Salisbury players appeared for the scheduled contest with Centerville. Surprised fans shortly heard the umpire announce postponement of the game because of "threatening weather."

Overhead, the sky was starchy and clear. A gentle southerly breeze ruffled the grass. The temperature was a comfortable 72.

"It looks bad," said business Manager Melvin Murphy, ostensibly referring to the weather. He added that he didn't know whether it would "rain" out tonight's game."

IF IT CLEARS UP

With but three days of the Class D Eastern Shore League season left, Salisbury is fourth and virtually certain of a spot in the playoffs.

Provided, of course, the weather clears up.

46 Real Fireworks Due To Pop in A. L. Race

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1940

By Associated Press

The American League inferno is getting hot enough to explode, and it probably will next week.

Right now there is a good possibility Cleveland, Detroit and New York will be approximately tied by Tuesday when the world champion Yankees invade the West for two games with the Indians and three with the Tigers. If something doesn't pop in the heat that will be on in those games, it only can mean the American League is lined with asbestos.

FIRST DIVISION BUNCHED

The valiant Detroit Tigers overwhelmed the Indians again yesterday, 11-3, and the Yankees walloped the Washington Senators in both ends of a doubleheader, 2-1 and 3-1.

Furthermore, the Red Sox pounced on the Philadelphia Athletics, 9-7, and created the almost unprecedented situation of the entire first division being bunched inside 1½ games three weeks before the season ends.

A four-game losing streak hardly can be called a Cleveland collapse, but the Tigers certainly have got the Indians on the run. After trampling Bobby Feller Wednesday, the Detroit sluggers roughed up Lefty Al Smith and Joe Deaton yesterday, scoring nine runs in batches of three in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Rudy York and Bruce Campbell each homered with two on.

"Gummy Bridges started on the mound for the Tigers and had the good little Indians eating out of his hand for four innings, once fanning three in a row. But the Indians revolted in the fifth, and Al Fenton finished for Detroit and earned the victory.

YANKS FORCED TO LIMIT

The Yanks had no snap achieving their double win. They got an unearned run off Dutch Leonard in the first game, which Rookie Pitcher Ernie Bonham singled home. He also singled to help get the other tally and kept seven hits spaced for his fourth straight victory.

In the nightcap, Walter Masterzon checked the champs on four hits for seven innings, but they blasted out three runs in the eighth and another three in the ninth to make the score lopsided.

New York has beaten Washington 13 times in 16 games and has six more remaining with the Senators. These may help keep the champions in office, if they negotiate their western campaign successfully.

The Chicago White Sox stopped the St. Louis Browns, 4-2, in a night pitching duel between Ed

N. L. REMAINS PLACID

The National League flowed along its placid course as though it never had known any September tribulations.

The Cincinnati Reds conquered the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-3, to welcome Johnny Vander Meer back into the big time. "Double no-hit" kept nine hits pretty well scattered, walked five and struck out six. Frank McCormick helped him with the two-run homer in the first and singled with the bases loaded in the eighth, when the Reds made four runs.

The Brooklyn Dodgers kept their distance, eight games back, by beating out the Phillies, 8-3, scoring three times in the tenth inning to put the game out of reach after the tail-enders had tied it up with one run in the last of the ninth.

Reds Buy Indians' Ace Southpaw

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 6 (AP)—Sale of Bob Logan, ace southpaw of the Indianapolis American Association baseball club, to the Cincinnati Reds was announced today by Leo Miller, president of the Indians.

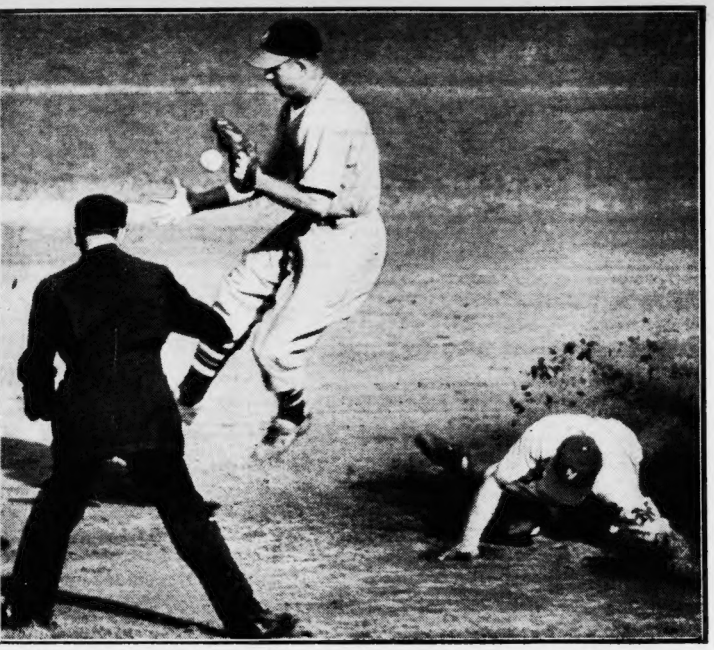

Logan will report to the Reds next spring. Miller said it was a cash deal and no players were involved. The amount was not disclosed.

Amateur Nines 4 TITLES AT STAKE Open Series IN BROOKLINE SWIM At Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 6 (AP)—The world's series of amateur baseball, with sandlot teams from 20 cities competing, will open tomorrow with five double-headers.

Held for the first time in the deep South, the tournament will draw major and minor league scouts who seek new Bob Fellers and Joe DiMaggios in the rough.

Jim Downey, president of the National Amateur Baseball Federation and long-time head of the Birmingham Federation, will supervise the drawing tonight.

Winners of the 10 games tomorrow will meet in the second round Sunday. Losers will play also, eliminating five clubs under the tournament's two-loss rule.

Barring rain, the sandlotters should crown their new world's champions by Sept. 14.

Detroit won last year's tournament, defeating a Birmingham team 14 to 12 in the final contest. No southern team has won the tournament in its 25 years, but Birmingham was runner-up in 1934.

Teams are entered from Detroit, Dearborn, Pontiac and Royal Oak, Mich.; Cleveland, Barberton, Dayton and Youngstown, O.; Baltimore and Frostburg, Md.; Pittsburgh; New York; Waterbury, Ct.; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Chicago; Memphis, Tenn.; Atlanta, Washington, Birmingham, and Empire, Ala.

ment and the Brookline Swimming Club will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the Reservoir, on Boylston st., Brookline.

There will be four championship events, one open event, and three events closed to Brookline.

In the New England senior 440 yards freestyle, there is a good field including the defending champion, Robert Donnelly, of the Worcester Boys Club. Also entered are James Doherty of the Boys' Clubs of Boston, Roxbury District, 220 junior champ; James Logue, Brookline Swimming Club, former 500 yard junior champ; and Meredith Boyd of West Springfield.

Entries in the New England junior 100 meters backstroke are as follows: William Colella, Worcester Boys' Club, Lincoln Square; Magner Goode, Boston Swimming Association; Jack Russell, Brookline Swimming Club; Robert Muir, Brookline Swimming Club.

The Women's New England junior 100 freestyle is expected to be a very fine race as Joy Pray of the W.S.A. of Brookline, who in her last two attempts to annex this title was just beaten, and Sally Doherty of Charlestown Girls' Club, have entered. Barbara McKenzie and Clare McDonald of the W.S.A. of Brookline are also entered.

Frances Howarth and Ruth Howarth of the Whitins Community Association are expected to prove too much for Agnes Walkama of the W.S.A. of Brookline in the Mass. 100 yard backstroke.

Navy, Harvard Play Cornell Next Year

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—Navy and Harvard will replace Army and Ohio State on Cornell's 1941 football schedule, the athletic department announced today. Appointment of Kenneth G. Brown, co-captain and reserve fullback on last fall's Cornell team, as assistant coach also was announced.

The 1941 schedule: Oct. 4, Syracuse; Oct. 11, Harvard at Cambridge; Oct. 18, Navy at Baltimore; Oct. 25, Colgate; Nov. 1, Columbia; Nov. 8, Yale; Nov. 15, Dartmouth; Nov. 22, Penn at Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (INS)—By vote of the directors, Dudley F. Rogers, Danvers, Mass., today succeeded the late Russell H. Johnson, Philadelphia, as president of the American Kennel Club.

Escott Quits As Coach at St. Clement's

St. Clement's high school faces the opening of the Catholic League football loop without a coach, due to the resignation of Francis Escott.

Escott, who developed the league championship baseball team a year ago, has taken a position down on the Cape.

Prominently mentioned for the post are John Rogan, former semi-pro football star and present Somerville high school backfield coach, who has assisted Escott; John Rodina, who played for Somerville high in the late 20's, and John O'Connor, a former Holy Cross star and 1-ter coach at Malden Catholic high school.

No selection has been made as yet.

$15,000 Race Ahead For War Plumage

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—James Cox Brady's War Plumage, winner over Kay 2nd and other handicap stars in a $25,000 stake at Washington Park Labor Day, is seen as a certain starter in the $15,000 Beldame Handicap to be run at Aqueduct, Sept. 21.

SPIKED—This photograph was snapped at the actual instant the sharp spikes of Nats' Cecil Travis caught the Yankees' Red Rolfe in the face and opened a wide gash on his forehead. Red got the ball to tag Cecil as the latter came sliding into third trying to stretch his second-inning double in nightcap of doubleheader. The double didn't stretch. Umpire Ormsby called him "out." The Yankees won both games, first one, by 2 to 1 score, this nightcap, 8 to 1.

One reason the All-Stars looked so good against the Giants is that last week they scrimmaged four times against another pro team—the Long Island Indians. And Indians scored exactly the same number of points against the colts as the Giants.

"Red" Martin has been a regular infidel on the Kansas State Prison team for 13 years and in all that time has never hit under 400... Right now he is rocking that apple at a 491 gain against the best semi-pro clubs in Kansas City and surrounding territory.

On his way back from the women's amateur tourney at Pebble Beach, Cal., Joe Dey, secretary of the U. S. G. A., will visit Fort Worth and help 'em get lined up for next year's national open. Tuffy Leemans, George Washington U's most famous football son, tags fullback Walt Fedora as the best-looking back he's seen on a G. W. squad in five years.

A well-meaning Ohio lady wrote to Jim Stuber of the State Conservation Department, protesting against the wholesale shooting of skeet. "Can't we do something about it?" she asked.

Richman, action and far back to the stretch, swung to the outside and closing with determination just got up in the last stride to gain the photo award. Brighton Up, in the thick of contention from the start, fought for command all through the stretch and just failed to last. Study Period displayed keen early speed, forced the early pace, assumed a short lead and in light quarters on the rail in the stretch, showed a good effort. Mrs. B. Ryan's b. f. was rubbed up at the break to take a short lead, was under constant pressure the entire trip and hung on well at the end. In Dutch looked good the first half mile, then came stoutly in the stretch when too late. Snappy Heels, always close up, had no mishap. Last Chance moved a serious factor. Kelly's Lad showed nothing. Brenda had good early speed then gradually retired. Phil was never close. Astoria had brief speed then quit.

Daily Double—Richman and Pampa paid $177.30.

(Daily Double) Richman and Pampa paid $177.30.
Pampa, away fast, forced the early pace, fought for command with Mahdi, pushing the far turn and entering the stretch, assumed a short lead an eighth out, gave way slightly to Bell's Fire in the drive, then came on again to catch a close decision at the wire. Bell's Fire, a keen factor early, lay without striking distance on the final turns and responding calmly in the drive, took a short lead about a sixteenth out, then hung when the final test came. Meadow Morn, far back and out on the stretch, came fast between horses in the drive to out-English Ugh in the show. The latter broke fast, outran on the far side, swung to the outside for the drive and closed stoutly. Showed race evenly and was unable to better her position under urging. All Time High, well up early on the outside, laid ground on the turns and was unable to menace in the drive. Entire Nona was never a factor. Mahdi displayed keen pace-setting speed, held on in the final eighth then stopped fast. Marcelline was outclassed. Gleemch, up close early, dropped out of the contention. Marceline always trailed.

FADING CR/BADES MAP PLAY UNDER OWN ORDERS

DETROIT, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians went on a new war path uncharted by Chief Oscar Vitt today as the pennant race developed into the tightest tangle of the season.

Miss Bundy Defeated

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—Valerie Scott of England became the first player to reach the semi-finals of the national tennis championships today when she rallied to beat Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, in the quarter-finals of women's singles at Forest Hills today.

The English girl's soft game demoralized Dorothy toward the last. In the first set it looked like a runaway for Dorothy, due to her superior speed, both off the ground and overhead. Miss Scott tried to match drives with her and was outclassed.

But with the start of the second set, and from there on, it was a far different story. Miss Scott began dealing almost exclusively in soft stuff—teasing chops just over the net, soft slices down the lines and towering lobs—and Miss Bundy knocked them every which way. She virtually gave up toward the end, winning only 1w points in the last two games.

In a morning match, Virginia Wolfenden of San Francisco defeated Patricia Canning of Alameda, Cal., 6-3, 6-0, in a third round match postponed from yesterday.

WOMEN'S SINGLES, THIRD ROUND
Virginia Wolfenden, San Francisco, defeated Patricia Canning, Alameda, Cal., 6-3, 6-0.

QUARTER-FINALS
Dorothy M. Bundy, Santa Monica, Cal., was defeated by Valerie Scott, England, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Dodgers Top Phils, 3-0

They were a determined-looking band after losing their second to the Tigers, making four straight losses. Both Detroit and New York are within two games of their first place of the season.

"WILL GIVE ORDERS"
The Indians were reluctant to discuss their council of war, which recalled previous such sessions—first to demand that Vitt be fired and later to agree to forget everything but the pennant.

Several players indicated this session was attended by "all but two or three regulars."

Asked how they expected to carry out their plans without co-operation of Vitt, one spokesman said grimly:

"If we have to do it, we'll give the orders ourselves."

PERCENTAGE PLAY
"We are out to do only one thing, and that is to win the pennant. We think we can do it, but not with the kind of ball we've been playing. We've decided we must go for one or two runs at a time, and this means we can't overlook any chances to advance runners. That's what we talked about—ways and means of getting runs across the plate without leaving so many men on the bases."

"At our best we are not a power hitting ball club, and with Hal Trosky hurt, this is all the more true. We are just beating ourselves when we try the old army game of slugger."

Vitt himself had no comment on the meeting, except to say: "I'm still working for Mr. Bradley (Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland club) and will continue to do so as long as the arrangement is agreeable with him."

"ONLY PEP MEETING"
At Cleveland, Bradley declared the players' hotel-room session was a "pep meeting" and "does not affect the situation at all."

"I have made a check as best can by telephone on the happenings at that meeting," Bradley said. "I find that the meeting was a pep meeting and it is regrettable that any publicity was given to it."

"Ball players, Oscar Vitt and I have but one thing in mind—that is, to win the pennant for Cleveland."

Dodgers Top Phils, 3-0

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6 (AP)—Ducky Medwick's 14th home run of the year, coming in the third inning with two on base, helped Freddie Fitzsimmons to his 14th victory of the season as the Dodger hurler blanked the Phils 3-0 in the first game of a double-header today. Fitz allowed only 10 hits.

Duxbury Boat Third In Adams Cup Series

POINT O' WOODS, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—Miss Sylvia Sheehan's crew, representing the American Yacht Club of Rye, N. Y., went back into the lead in the competition for the Mrs. Charles Francis Adams cup, emblematic of the Women's National Sailing Championship, by winning the fifth of the six-race series today.

The Watch Hill, R. L. boat was second and the Duxbury, Mass., entry, third.

Babe Marchildon To Report Sept. 13

TORONTO, Sept. 6 (AP)—Phil (Babe) Marchildon, right-handed pitcher of the Toronto Maple Leafs, purchased recently by Connie Mack, will join the Philadelphia club on Sept. 13. It was announced today.

Montreal officials said other Leafs to go to the Athletics include Pitcher Les McCrab, Infielders Darlo Lodigiani and Bill Lillard, and Outfielder Eric Tipton.
